

AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION TO THROW MIGHT AGAINST MONOPOLY LAW INDICTMENTS

ATLANTA SLAYER KILLED BY BLOW IN TATNALL HALL

Fist Fight Ends in Death of Charles Cooper, Killer of James T. Chappell in Stoddard Robbery.

PROVERBIAL 'CODE' OF PRISON UPHELD

Accused Refuses to Tell Motive, Admits Fray in Few Curt Words.

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

Charles M. Cooper, a life-term er from Fulton county in Tattall state prison, met at the hands of a fellow convict last night the fate he had twice cheated at the hands of the law.

The imperturbable young man, who sat calmly through two tempestuous trials and twice heard jurors convict him of murder with no recommendation of mercy, was killed by a single blow from the fist of an ex-pugilist.

Intervention by Governor Talmadge in 1936 saved Cooper from the electric chair to which he had been twice sentenced for the murder in November, 1932, of James T. Chappell, an auditor for the Stoddard Dry Cleaning Company, on West Peachtree street.

Clash in Hallway.

In a hallway of Tattall prison at 5 o'clock yesterday, Cooper met Bob O'Connell, alias Hugh Gibson, a worker in the prison hospital,
a former University of Florida student and pugilist, an old companion of Pee Wee Burns, a convicted hi-jacker who at one time, armed with a wooden pistol, led a wholesale break at the Bibb county public works camp, overpowering a guard and locking him into a prison cell.

The two convicts exchanged a few words and mixed.
Warden A. J. Walton reported last night that O'Connell admitted striking Cooper, knocking him to the cement floor in the hallway just off the bakery, but gave no reason for the fight. There was no witness.

According to Warden Walton, O'Connell said:

"I hit Cooper with my fist and his head hit the cement floor. Then I walked away and left him."

Picked Up Dead.

When Cooper was lifted from the floor, he was dead.

Efforts were being made by prison officials last night to find Cooper's father, C. C. Cooper, who, unlike his son, lost his poise during the second trial in 1934, twice leaping to his feet to shout arguments in his son's defense. He has moved from the address given too badly tomorrow morning, you'll have the consolation of knowing that whatever you did, you did it for somebody else.

Tonight's the night of the sixth

A 50-cent ticket will admit you

REDS START PURGE IN SOVIET UKRAINE

Report Says Cleanup, Only Begun, Is Directed at Fascist Group.

MOSCOW, Dec. 20.—(P)—A purge of the leadership of Young Communists in the Ukraine was disclosed today by the newspaper Soviet Ukraine, which reported dismissal of five high executives of the Ukrainian Comsomol (Communist youth organization).
The paper said the cleanup was directed against "a bloody, triple-crossed gang of Fascist degener-ates." It added:

"Trotskyist, Bucharinist, Nationalist bandits succeeded in corrupting morally and politically some Comsomol workers who were without firm convictions... and in making them tools of foreign intelligence services...
They wanted to separate Comsomol from its dear mother Communist party and were plotting terrorist actions against the best people of the Communist party."

The newspaper said Comsomol purge had only begun.

WHITE RUSSIAN WARNS AGAINST JOINING HITLER

PARIS, Dec. 20.—(P)—White Russian General Anton Denikine charged today that Nazi Germany has plotted a line of march eastward through the Soviet Ukraine to cut off all the rich southern provinces of the Soviet Union.
Himself a bitter enemy of the Soviet government, Denikine disclosed what he called the secret ambitions of Adolf Hitler in an effort to check the break of his followers away from the old Imperial Russian forces to Nazi ranks. It was Denikine who led the White Russians in their final struggle against the Bolsheviks in 1918.

The strategy submitted to the White Russians, the general explained was to:

"Create a Ukraine independent of Moscow, in the service of Germany, and through which they (Nazis) could march on Georgia and Azerbaijan."
Friends of Denikine said he would continue his attempts to impress upon White Russians his belief there is a Nazi peril to their country.

He condemned "any so-called Russians" who would join Adolf Hitler to fight the Soviet Union and declared before an audience of Soviet-hating White Russians last night that "white or red, our fatherland remains our fatherland."

30-35 MILE SPEED ON SOME STREETS STUDIED BY POLICE

Malcom Recommends One-Way Thoroughfares and Urges Slow Autoists To Stay Far to the Right.

DRIVERS HELPING, CAPTAIN DECLARES

Says Motorists Observing New Limit Much Better Than Old One.

A proposal to increase Atlanta's speed limit to 30 or 35 miles an hour on a few "feeder" streets outside of the business district is being considered by Captain Jack Malcom, head of the traffic bureau.

"The 25-mile limit has proved a success thus far in cutting down accidents," the traffic chief declared, "but I am considering recommending to council that the limit should be increased to 30 or 35 miles an hour on certain thoroughfares outside the downtown fire lines."

Not Main Arteries.

Captain Malcom pointed out that his recommendations would not apply to main arteries of traffic leading to and from the city. He also announced he would continue to seek adoption of his "one-way street" program.

"Motorists apparently are more than willing to comply with the new regulations and to co-operate with us in our drive to reduce accidents," Captain Malcom said. "As a matter of fact they are observing the new speed limit better than they did the old one."

In support of this, he pointed out that no injuries from traffic accidents were reported yesterday, and that traffic violations of all kinds had taken a sharp drop. According to records of the department, only 45 cases were booked yesterday for Monday violations as compared with 113 Sunday cases. Only two of the Monday cases were for speeding.

Captain Malcom spent the day patrolling the streets in the police "safety cruiser" with Captain Phil Dorr, former head of the Pennsylvania state highway patrol.

Keep to Right.

He said traffic could be speeded up considerably without danger if motorists driving slower than 25 miles an hour would keep well to the right in order to allow other cars to pass them easily.

In connection with the "one-way street" plan, he said his recommendations would include:
Spring street, south; Whitehall street, north; Peachtree street, south, from Tenth street, to Ivy to Central avenue, to Georgia avenue; Washington street, north, to the auditorium, to Capitol avenue, to Juniper street; Piedmont avenue, south, from Fourteenth street to the capitol; Decatur street, east; Edgewood avenue, west; Auburn avenue, east, and Houston street, north to Boulevard.

Santa Claus Has Big Time With His Believers at Battle Hill Sanatorium

Santa Claus brought plenty of happiness to the children being treated at Battle Hill sanatorium, but when he left, late yesterday, it was a question who had had the best time. All skepticism as to Santa's existence vanished during the affair.

OLD SANTA VISITS BATTLE HILL KIDS

Enraptured Youngsters at Crowded Institution
Pat and Hug Benefactor

By RALPH MCGILL.

We had just come—Santa Claus and I—out of the big bedrooms where the children had fled after the Christmas-day celebration in the assembly room.
Behind us was the sound of children laughing and shouting.
The trebles and the trills of their voices made a good sound, ringing clear.

This was at Battle Hill sanatorium—that crowded place where little children are restored to health; where adults are enabled to fight and often check the disease which steals the breath. There is room for so few of them. The buildings are inadequate. It was this that Atlanta's citizens refused to vote bonds to improve in the recent election.

Four Atlantans To Provide For 2 Opportunity Families

But Three of Ten Have So Far Been Left Unadopted, With Bleak Christmas Facing Them Unless Help Is Quickly Forthcoming.

By FRANK DRAKE.

Four charitable-hearted Atlantans yesterday displayed the true spirit of Christmas when they volunteered to "adopt" two needy families of The Constitution's annual Ten Opportunities. These generous persons are going to help make the two families secure during 1939 as they struggle to regain their independence—and the donors prefer to remain anonymous.

The Constitution salutes the unselfishness and modesty of the anonymous givers.

Three Women Contributed.

Opportunity Family No. 8 was taken under the wing of three women, while the touching story of Opportunity Family No. 10 caused a generous Atlanta businessman to decide to help a mother create a home for her two little girls.

Each family will be provided $25 every month while they restore order to the chaos of their lives and, with strong determination, fight their battles to become self-supporting.

Both Opportunity No. 8 and Opportunity No. 10, the deserving families are headed by mothers who have been deserted by their husbands.

Mrs. N., is Opportunity No. 8, the mother of a four-year-old son,
Roger, and a two-year-old girl, Sally Ann. This mother is young and she wants to earn the way for herself and her babies. Before she was married she worked, and the company which employed her wants to give her a job. But until it does, or until Mrs. N. finds other work, the help of the three women will bolster her spirit and will not allow this mother and her children to starve.

Think what it will mean to Mrs.

AFL, RAIL LABOR FORM NEW FRONT

To Act Together in Seeking National Legislation
Based on Their Program

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(P)—

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, said tonight that the federation and the railroad brotherhoods, acting together, would support legislation for adequate relief funds, a reasonable expansion of national defense, and revision of labor laws in the new congress.

He told reporters these problems were discussed during the day by 50 legislative agents representing the brotherhoods and federation unions.

Slum Clearance.

The AFL group, he said, would seek to revise the Wagner labor act and the wage-hour law, support amendments widening the scope and benefits of the social security act, and urge appropriation of additional funds for slum clearance and low-cost housing under the United States Housing Authority.

The federation drive to change the Wagner act is a double-barrel effort. Besides amendments to curtail the National Labor Relations Board's powers, the AFL also wants the senate to reject President Roosevelt's reappointment of Donald Wakefield Smith, board member.

"We feel that the sentiment against confirmation of Mr. Smith is very great," Green said. "We expect the opposition of the CIO but we have counted and discounted that. We feel the public opinion manifested against CIO in the last election will assert itself in congress."

Labor Board Revision.

Green said amendments sought by the AFL would force the labor board to let the workers decide for themselves whether the proper bargaining unit was a plant, craft or class unit, and would curtail the power of the board to invalidate contracts signed by free independent unions.

LONG LEGAL WAR WITH DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE IS SEEN

Three Other Medical Societies and 21 Individual Physicians Are Named
by U. S. Grand Jury.

MORRIS FISHBEIN UNDER INDICTMENT

Case Grows Out of Society's Opposition to Group Health Plan.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(P)—
A legal fight fraught with major import for the future history of medical care in the United States began today when a federal grand jury indicted the American Medical Association, three affiliated societies, and 21 leading physicians on a charge of violating the Sherman anti-trust act.

The medical association announced immediately that it would throw all its energies into the battle against the charge. Dr.
Morris Fishbein, leader in the association, said at Chicago that its house of delegates had authorized its board of directors to "defend the case to the limit."

Fight on Co-op.

The indictment grows out of a fight by organized medicine against Group Health Association, Inc., a co-operative set-up in Washington to provide medical care for government workers who pay periodical risk-sharing fees in advance.

The charge is that the defendants conspired to restrain trade by preventing physicians hired by the co-operative from practicing in Washington hospitals or consulting with other doctors. It is also alleged that one doctor was ousted from the District of Columbia Medical Society because of his work with the co-operative, and that proceedings were started against another for the same reason.

Thurman Arnold, new assistant attorney general who contends the anti-trust laws have not been rigorously enforced in the past, instituted the action against the medical association and the others named defendants today.

Those Named.

The indictments, copies of which were released by the Department of Justice when the grand jury returned its report, names, besides the Medical Association, the District of Columbia Medical Society, the Washington Academy of Surgery and the Harris County (Texas) Medical Society.

Also named defendants were Dr.
Fishbein, who is editor of the

UNIFICATION PUSHED BY PRESBYTERIANS

Southern Church Names Subcommittee To Confer With Other Groups.

Southern Presbyterians came a step nearer affiliation with other bodies of the church yesterday when the Committee on Co-operation and Union of the Presbyterian Church in the United States perfected organization and appointed a subcommittee to confer with other factions.

Dr. Thomas W. Currie, of Austin, Texas, president of the Austin Theological Seminary, was named chairman of the permanent committee on unification at a meeting where all but three of the 17 synods of the Southern Presbyterian Church were represented. Dr. Dunbar H. Ogden, of New Orleans, was elected secretary of the committee.

Named to the subcommittee, instructed to seek a conference with the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. (Northern), were Dr. Currie, chairman; Dr. Ogden, Willis M. Everett, of Atlanta, moderator of the Southern Presbyterian Church; Judge P. F. Henderson, of Aiken, S. C.; Dr. E. T. Wellford, of Newport News, and Dr. Frank Caldwell, of Louisville, Ky.

A "community sing" will be substituted this year for music by organized choirs.

Hundreds of Pretty Dolls for Little Girls

Hundreds of dolls were being unloaded last night by Mrs. Richard Fitton, major of the Salvation Army, as toys for Atlanta's poor children were distributed through the Army's toy shop on Walton street. Yesterday afternoon all the toys for boys had been given away, but the girls' toys were still running into the hundreds.

There Are Few Bad Little Boys, Rush for Free Yule Toys Shows

Parents Stand in Line for Hours To Obtain Salvation Army Gifts So That Santa Will Not Forget Their Children.

By YOLANDE GWIN.
Little girls, they say, are made of sugar and spice and everything nice, whereas little boys are made of snakes and snails and puppy dog tails.

But it was the presents for little boys that gave out yesterday at the Salvation Army's toy shop on Walton street, while hundreds of dolls dressed in ribbons and frills lined the shelves on the girls' side of the shop.

All day long thankful mothers and fathers, their care-worn and anxious faces brightened by the prospect of free toys, streamed into the shop to receive presents for their children.

Early yesterday afternoon all of the trains and wagons, and footballs and baseball bats, toy pistols and other playthings for boys were claimed.

The parents stood in line for hours, awaiting their turn to enter the reserved space to select their toys. Each came with tickets from accredited welfare agencies entitling them to receive the free gifts.

Visions of sugar plums that dance on the heads of little children on the night before Christmas will become a reality, because in addition to toys, each received a bag of candy and delicious fruit for Christmas stockings.

There are hundreds of little girls in Atlanta who will be made happy on Christmas morning when they receive a beautiful doll from the top shop. Yesterday in addition to the rows and rows of dolls, there were exciting-looking boxes filled with more dolls to give happiness to some little girls who otherwise would have been forgotten on Christmas morning.

Meantime, Salvation Army officials were arranging to refill the great demand for boys' toys. This morning when the doors open at the toy shop at 54 Walton street, there will be a grand array of boys' gifts in addition to the dolls.

The Woman's Chamber of Commerce is responsible for a large part of the doll supply with more than 4,000 dressed and ready for Santa's pack on Christmas Eve.

An additional $109,000 will be added to the total before Friday night when another pay roll for courthouse employees, under orders of the Fulton county commissioners, is distributed.

Approximately 3,000 municipal employees, including teachers, yesterday were paid more than $500,000 for pre-Christmas shopping. Fulton county's 1,675 school teachers received $110,000.

Recipients planned to take time out to visit stores and prepare for Santa Claus' visit over the week end.

1,200 EMANUEL ACRES ARE PLANTED IN PINE

THIS UNIVERSE OF OURS

The Earth, set in the midst of a few planets like itself; countless millions of stars similar to the Sun; and many thousands of cloudlike masses of matter called "Nebulae," spread out over a tremendous distance in a space of incalculable extent, constitutes the known Universe. The science which deals with these heavenly bodies is Astronomy.

EXCHANGE GROUP ELECTS OFFICERS

Henry Powell, Insurance Executive, Named President of Civic Club.

Henry Powell, Atlanta insurance executive, yesterday was elected president of the Atlanta Exchange Club as the civic organization entered its third year's activities here.

Other officers named were Chess Lagomarsino, vice president; Vann Jernigan, secretary, and Alan Ford, treasurer. Members of the board of control will be George Koskakis, R. A. Medlock and Charles Hammond.

Club members made plans for their annual Santa Claus party at Grady hospital Saturday afternoon. Members of the club and their wives will visit the hospital with gifts for the children who are confined there. Powell, who played St. Nick last Christmas, will do so again. The party will begin at 2 o'clock.

Plans for the state convention of Exchange clubs, to meet here in June, also were discussed.

Powell, who succeeds the Rev. T. V. Morrison as president of the club, is president of the Atlanta Life Managers' Club and of the Travelers' Aid Society. He is past president of the Atlanta Life Underwriters' Association and alumni advisor of the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity.

JAMES ROOSEVELT 'MAY RUN' IN 1942

Says He's Much Too Busy To Be Candidate in 1940.

BOSTON, Dec. 20.—(P)—James Roosevelt today declared he might "seek election to public office" in 1942 but that he was "altogether too busy" to run in 1940.

Explaining in an interview that he intended to maintain legal residence in Massachusetts, the President's son and former secretary added:

"Probably in 1942 I can seek office on my own qualifications, and it is not too remote a possibility to say I may seek election to public office at that time."

Roosevelt returned to Washington tonight to pass the Christmas holidays at the White House and will attend the Jackson Day dinner in Boston January 7.

CHAMBERLAIN OFF IN BRITISH SURVEY

approximately 60 per cent of voters in a British Institute survey said they favored the Chamberlain government. By October of this year the prime minister's popular support had fallen to 57 per cent, and was still declining in November, for the latest test shows a smaller majority—55 per cent—expressing satisfaction with him.

The latest British survey reveals the interesting coincidence that Chamberlain's popularity in England in terms of percentage support is the same as President Roosevelt's popularity in this country as measured by the last American Institute survey. The heads of the two great democracies are both favored by 55 per cent of their respective voting populations.

Several factors have undoubtedly contributed to the decline of Chamberlain's popularity. One is public revulsion against the Munich agreement. Another is a widespread feeling in Great Britain, as shown by British Institute surveys, that the word of the German dictator whom Chamberlain has been attempting to appease is untrustworthy. Still another is the disgust of British voters with the persecution of racial minorities in Germany—a disgust expressed by four out of every five voters in a recent British Institute study. These factors have affected Chamberlain's political popularity because his policy has been to make "deals" with the dictator powers of whom the British public is obviously suspicious.

Alarm Brings All But New Paint Job

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—(P)—Mrs. Pearl Bruner's automobile caught fire in the Loop during the evening rush hour today and a bystander pulled the nearest alarm. The result:

Four engine companies responded, followed by two hook and ladder companies, an inhalator squad, a water tower, a high pressure pumper, a street car emergency truck, 10 policemen, two battalion chiefs, a division marshal and Chief Marshal Michael Corrigan. A fireboat prepared for action on the river two blocks away.

The alarm was sounded from what is known as the "theater box" because of its proximity to the entertainment center. It calls all type of equipment as a precaution.

The car's damage was blistered paint.

COSTER USED LOOT FOR GIGANTIC LOBBY

Federal Authorities Disclose Most of Ill-Gotten Gains Are Dissipated.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(P)—The millions pilfered from the McKesson & Robbins Drug Corporation by the self-destructed swindler, F. Donald Coster-Musica, and others have been mostly frittered away, federal investigators indicated today.

Great sums mulcted from the $87,000,000 firm, they added, were sunk in lobbying activities for liquor price-fixing in virtually every state and in Washington.

Benjamin Simon, who lives at the address in the Bronx which appears on faked birth certificates filed three years ago in Washington by the Musica brothers, was arrested tonight on a "general conspiracy" charge. A Ben Simon was mentioned also in testimony concerning purported munitions deals of Coster-Musica.

The three surviving Musica brothers, all masquerading under assumed names along with Coster-Musica, who resigned the McKesson & Robbins presidency by suicide last Friday, are held in default of $100,000 bail each.

Boaty Mostly Gone.

Brien McMahon, assistant United States attorney general, who came here from Washington to co-ordinate the federal activities, said that the brothers' revenue from bootlegging alcohol ran into millions but that "their ill-gotten gains are mostly gone." "They didn't live lavishly, either," he said.

The assistant United States attorney general was inclined to minimize the reports that Coster-Musica had engaged in schemes for the shipment of arms to unnamed countries abroad.

(However, in Bridgeport, Conn., Lewis A. Shea, executive vice president of the First National Bank of Bridgeport, said Coster last May had sought establishment of international credit for the handling of 2,125,000 rifles to be sold to foreign governments, and that the bank had turned down the proposal.)

Thomas A. Brunl, who described himself as an arms broker and engineer, was questioned today by Gregory F. Noonan, acting United States attorney. Later he told reporters he had expected to negotiate a contract for the sale of 100,000 rifles and 100,000,000 rounds of ammunition to the Chinese army under General Chiang Kai-shek, but that nothing had come of the matter.

Arms Contract.

Frederick Wingersky, a McKesson & Robbins vice president in charge of law and labor relations, testified yesterday that Coster-Musica directed him last May to draw a contract for the purchase

Boys' Department of Y. M. C. A. Sees Santa

There is a Santa Claus! C. C. Mitchell, director of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., last night played the jolly saint to about 300 underprivileged boys at a Christmas party. He is shown above distributing presents to a clamoring horde in the "Y" lobby.

of 2,000,000 new Lee-Enfield rifles and 100,000,000 cartridges. Wingersky went to the federal building for questioning today.

Other prospective grand jury witnesses include officers of Price, Waterhouse & Company, auditors for McKesson & Robbins. W. J. Murray Jr., first vice president and a director, said the directors, so far as he could remember, did not question the statement of the assets of the fictionalized crude drug department because they were backed by figures from the Price, Waterhouse auditors. He never saw the original figures, however, he said.

300 BOYS GUESTS AT 'Y' YULE PARTY

No Turkey, But Pounds of Fruit and Nuts Given Each.

Christmas came early to at least 300 boys of Atlanta last night. C. C. Mitchell, director of boys' activities at the Atlanta Y. M. C. A. for the last 15 years, entertained at an informal Christmas party.

Departing from the annual procedure of a regular Christmas dinner, with turkey, Mr. Mitchell, who has played Santa to the poor boys of the city for a good many years, distributed presents from a Christmas tree in the boys' club building and then sped his guests on their way with a present of a 10-pound bag containing fruit, nuts, candy and a small present. He also gave each boy present a sweater with the legend, "Atlanta Y. M. C. A. Boys' Club," emblazoned on it.

A short program of Christmas carols was sung, led by President Willard of the Atlanta Y. M. C. A. Mr. Mitchell became interested in boys when he first entered association work 25 years ago at Bisbee, Ariz. Since then he has made "growing youth" his chief study.

"I enjoy helping them," he said. "At heart I find they are all good, and with a little careful application and study it is easy to solve their problems and give them a helping hand through life."

JUSTICE OF PEACE, CONSTABLE NAMED IN BRIBE CHARGE

Paul Wilson, O.C. Barnett Indicted; Man Held in New Orleans Cited in Connection With Swindle

Justice of the Peace Paul Wilson, of the Lakewood district, and his constable, O. C. Barnett, yesterday were indicted by the Fulton grand jury on charges of accepting a $25 bribe to ignore a peace bond.

At the same time, the jury indicted Philip Cordovano, under arrest in New Orleans, of larceny after trust in an alleged $1,690 sugar swindle. Cordovano and two companions are accused of having fraudulently obtained that amount from Andre Wallach and the Sylvania Industrial Corporation on November 28. Bond for Cordovano was set at $5,000. Wilson and Barnett are held under $500 bonds each. According to testimony said to have been offered before the grand jury, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Belcher, of Route No. 1, Langston drive, S. W., engaged in an argument with another man over a business transaction. Peace warrants were issued all the way around.

Barnett was alleged to have told them that under a "new rule" such defendants had to spend 48 hours in jail. Belcher was declared to have telephoned Wilson, who, it was asserted, verified the statement, but added such cases could be arranged and suggested that Belcher "see the constable." This allegedly was done and the $25 is said to have changed hands. Cordovano is accused of ob-

COWBOY LOOKING FOR LADY TODAY

She Gets Free Tickets If— But Let Her Read This Story.

The cowboy is looking for the lady!

As in the motion picture, "The Cowboy and the Lady," coming to Loew's Grand Friday, a real cowboy will look for a real lady in the Christmas shopping crowds of downtown Atlanta today. And when he finds her, there will be tickets to see Gary Cooper and Merle Oberon in "The Cowboy and the Lady!"

When the cowboy finds the lady, however, she must be carrying a copy of this morning's Constitution. Moreover, she must have purchased in one of the many bargain-packed stores of the city some article advertised in your Constitution today.

As he wanders around town amongst the jostling, happy throngs of Christmas shoppers, the cowboy will keep his eyes well peeled for the lady with The Constitution. Fifty guest tickets will be given away today.

So look through your paper now, pick out from among the many exciting advertisements appearing in it, what you are going to buy today. Bring your paper with you, and after you have made your purchases, keep your eyes open for the cowboy with tickets for the ladies—tickets to see "The Cowboy and the Lady."

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 20. (UP)—A 22-foot speedboat, owned by Paul Chentoff, of Miami Beach, exploded and sank in a canal here today. No one was aboard. The blast was so severe it knocked plaster from walls in homes near by. Cause of the explosion was not known.

SALES OF LIQUOR IN COUNTY SOUGHT

Mandamus Action Filed To Force Issuance of Licenses by Commission.

Mandamus action to force the Fulton county commission to permit liquor sales in unincorporated areas of the county was begun yesterday and Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, with whom the suit was filed, set a hearing for January 30.

Grover Thomas, operator of a Spring street liquor store in Atlanta and an unsuccessful applicant for retail licenses to operate similar stores in the Buckhead sections, sought to force the county to "open up" outlying districts.

The action asks that the court force the commission "to set up rules and regulations provided by law" and to issue him a license.

A series of applications for liquor sales permits by Thomas and several others were denied by the board which adopted "a policy of keeping outlying districts free of liquor stores." The state liquor control act empowers each county to set up its own regulations, but according to commissioners it is optional.

W. T. GRANT COMPANY PAYS YULETIDE BONUS

Sixty-six employees of the Atlanta store of the W. T. Grant Company received Christmas bonuses yesterday totaling $650. Amounts varied from $3 for employees with six months' service to $21 for veteran workers. Checks were presented by W. G. Sipe, Atlanta manager.

Mr. Sipe pointed out that approximately 14,000 employees in nearly 500 cities would receive bonuses this year totaling about $140,000.

Dictators' Strong-Arm Squad Won in Showdown at Munich.

The year 1938 has produced a bewildering succession of big events—many of them affecting the life of Mr. John Q. Citizen. To sum up those events, show their significance and suggest what may lie ahead, AP experts have written a series of 10 daily stories of which this is the first.

By JOHN EVANS, General Foreign Editor, Associated Press.

Dictatorships and democracies had their showdown in 1938 and the strong-arm squad won.

Maps were scrapped, wars were fought, the United States joined the arms race. Statesmen took to airplanes in their hurried hunt for peace. They signed pacts, but they hammered out more swords and guns.

The new universal uniform was a gas mask.

There were fought by Japan, to conquer China; by Spaniards in their civil war, and by the British, to subdue Arabs in Palestine who resisted efforts to build a new homeland for Jews.

Arms Machine Speeds Up.

The world ran armament plants to capacity and built new ones. Armies were expanded, keels laid for more warships and thousands of military aircraft were ordered.

Adolf Hitler, of Germany, and Neville Chamberlain, of Britain, stood out as leaders in the steadily more sharply drawn lines between authoritarian countries and the democracies.

Anthony Eden, hat tilted debonairly, walked out of Chamberlain's cabinet in February and the new brand of "appeasement" began in Europe.

Munich was the world event of the year. Chamberlain and French Premier Edouard Daladier flew there September 29 to meet Hitler and Italian Fascist chief Benito Mussolini. In a few hours they carved up little Czechoslovakia.

One-third of the country went to Germany, Hungary and Poland. The two-thirds changed tactics and played the game with Germany as the safest course in a difficult situation.

"Go Ahead" for Nazis.

Hitler's seizure of Austria, March 13, was the visible turn in the tide. Germany saw the rest of the world didn't budge. It was the "Go ahead" signal for the Nazis. Hitler turned his eyes toward Czechoslovakia, where the German minority admittedly was treated not too well by the Czechs. There were threats and challenges. Russia and France were pledged to defend the little state. But apparently neither intended to. Instead, France and Britain agreed with Germany and Italy on the Czechoslovak partitioning.

That was the Munich pact. It brought the Big Four together. Hitler refused to yield, even at the price of war. He had his way.

Scores of complications followed Munich. Hitler and Chamberlain signed a declaration that neither of their countries wanted war. France later negotiated a similar one with Germany. Chamberlain and Daladier strengthened their military co-operation. Chamberlain and Mussolini negotiated and later put into effect a new friendship agreement. France tried to do similarly with Italy.

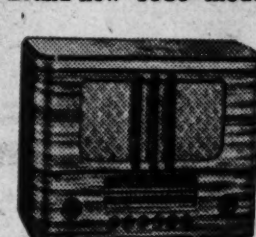

Russia saw nothing but trouble in western Europe and decided to let the boys fight it out. King Carol, of Rumania, went shopping about Europe and learned that British capital preferred investments in more peaceful countries. What he learned when he talked with Hitler in late November isn't known. But he started stamping out the Iron Guard, cast in the Nazi mould.

All those comings and goings were part of British plans for "appeasement," or offshoots from it. So also were two Chamberlain policy moves; announcement that King George VI and Queen Elizabeth would visit Canada—and the United States—next May; and appointment of the King's brother, the Duke of Kent, as governor-general of Australia. Those moves were designed to tighten empire ties, spread goodwill in the United States and serve notice on Japan that British warships would defend the King's possessions.

UKRAINIAN ISSUE LONG A PROBLEM IN THREE LANDS

Official of One-Time Republic Describes Long Battle for Freedom of His People in 3 Nations.

Editor's Note: Dr. Luka Myshuha, Ukrainian scholar, editor and former diplomat, describes the Ukrainian liberation movement from the Ukrainian viewpoint in the following dispatch written for the United Press. Dr. Myshuha, now a naturalized American citizen, represented the Western Ukrainian republic in the United States from 1921 to 1923. He recently returned from Europe where he conferred with British, Czech and Carpatho-Ukrainian officials.

By DR. LUKE MYSHUHA.
(Copyright, 1938, by United Press.)
NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The Ukrainian question has become a world problem. The threat of war has focused international attention on the struggle of more than 45,000,000 Ukrainians in Russia, Poland and Rumania for independence.

Since the World War the Ukrainian people have reminded the world powers that their division was forced by the Bolsheviks on one hand and the Allies on the other. As a result the Ukrainian republic established in 1917 was destroyed.

Ukrainians in America protested as far back as 1919, sending a special delegation to the Versailles peace conference. Since then they have demanded the right of Ukrainian self-determination. During most of this period the world did not even know of the existence of Adolf Hitler. Today when newspapers speak of the Ukrainian liberation movement as a creation of Hitler, little mention is made of the long struggle of the Ukrainians themselves for freedom.

Ukrainians proclaimed the Ukrainian national republic at Kiev upon the ruins of Czarist Russia in 1917. Ukrainians also proclaimed the Western Ukrainian republic in Lviv in 1918 upon the collapse of the Austro-Hungarian empire. These two republics united in 1919, and in their defense hundreds of thousands of Ukrainians died. The Kiev republic was crushed by the Bolsheviks and the Czarist Russians of Denikin who were aided by the Allies. The Lviv republic was destroyed by the Poles likewise supported by the Allies.

But the Ukrainian ideal of an independent sovereign state was not destroyed. Today thousands of Ukrainian youths are imprisoned in Soviet, Polish and Rumanian jails, charged with fighting for this ideal. Many write of Ukraine only as a pawn to further Hitler's ambitions. They guess what Hitler thinks of Ukraine, but few determine what the Ukrainian people themselves and their representatives proclaim and desire.

It is impossible for Ukrainians to understand why 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans can be united with Germany while 35,000,000 Ukrainians under Russia, 7,500,000 under Poland and 1,500,000 under Rumania must remain separated. And they cannot understand how Poland can seize Teschen with its some 80,000 Poles from Czechoslovakia on ethnographic principles and deny the millions of Ukrainians even the right to have their own university in Lviv.

Poland rejected the Ukrainian autonomy bill without discussion and the Ukrainian people despair of ever settling their problem peacefully with the Polish state. No Hitler or German need be needed in western Ukraine to create hatred; the Polish government does this well enough alone.

As for Russia, there is no need to explain the revulsion of the Ukrainian people for the Moscow occupants after 5,000,000 Ukrainians died of starvation in 1932-33.

COTTON FREIGHT HEARING IS ENDED

Roberts Opposes Intrastate Rate Boost.

The Georgia Public Service Commission completed a hearing yesterday on an application filed by railroads for an increase in intrastate rates for hauling cotton.

The rail carriers are asking authority to raise the intrastate rate to the level of the interstate charge.

Columbus Roberts, commissioner of agriculture, appeared before the commission to oppose "any increase whatever" in cotton haulage rates. Roberts reiterated his argument asserted in the December 15 issue of the Market Bulletin under the head, "The Farmer Pays the Freight."

HOWARD TO APPEAL BRIBERY CONVICTION

Deputy Seeks Reversal of Judge Etheridge; Smith Asks New Trial.

Attorneys representing ex-Deputy Sheriff Gus H. Howard Jr., convicted of five counts of bribery, yesterday planned to file an appeal to the supreme court following refusal of Judge Paul S. Etheridge, of Fulton county superior court, to grant a new trial in the case.

defense counsel, contended that Howard was the victim of underworld revenge, while Assistant Solicitors General E. E. (Shorty) Andrews and J. Walter LeCraw held he accepted money to protect bootleggers.

The new trial motion was one of the most voluminous ever filed in the local courts citing 23 specific grounds for granting the new trial.

A motion for a new trial for Richard Smith, convicted of the murder of Thomas Herd, Rhodes Center nightwatchman, also was filed during the day. Smith is under death sentence. Judge Etheridge set January 28 as the date for hearing the motion. Attorneys Daniel Duke and Warren Hall represent Smith.

NEW FOREIGN POLICY

As pointed out by Joseph Alsop and Robert Kintner in their column on this page, the granting of United States credits and loans to China, and the proposed extensive loans to South American countries, marks a radical departure from the previous foreign policy of this country.

For it means the United States is abandoning its often proclaimed policy of strict neutrality, complete isolationism, in regard to the affairs of the rest of the world. If this policy is continued, this nation will take an extremely powerful role in deciding the future history of the world.

With dollars and credits, instead of bullets, the United States enters the conflict between the two great groups of world powers, the democracies and the authoritarian states. The loans to China can be interpreted as nothing less than active participation by this country in the struggle between the Chinese under Chiang Kai-shek, and the Japanese. American soldiers are not fighting on Oriental soil, but most certainly American dollars are entering the fray on the side of the Chinese.

In similar manner, loans to South American countries are designed, ultimately, as a weapon to prevent the entry onto this continent of the totalitarian virus. By giving to the nations to our south the support of our financial strength, we forge the strongest of possible weapons against the infiltration of Nazi, Fascist or Soviet ideas into those republics.

There is no room for wonder at the irritation displayed by Japan because of this country's financial aid to China. That aid may, in fact, well become the deciding factor that shall tip the scales in favor of the Chinese defenders, in the ultimate outcome of the undeclared war.

That the Hitler government must look with alarm upon this change of policy goes without saying. It is the most definite threat against the present Germany this country can make, short of actual resort to arms.

For the battles of modern governments are fought with gold and with commerce, before they reach the stage of big guns and tanks and battleships. And, in this warfare of trade and finance, all the advantage lies with America.

That the change in policy is wise will be disputed, undoubtedly. Nevertheless it appears to be the only sensible course, in the world as it is today. For the truth, even though it be unpalatable to Americans, is that hitherto the cause of democracy and the safety of this nation and its ideals, has been defended by others. France, Britain and the democracies of Europe have fought our diplomatic battles against the dictatorships. That first line of defense, however, suffered fearful weakening at Munich. Today, if the United States is to remain free from the power and the greed and the cruelty of the dictators, she must look to her own defenses as best she may.

And her greatest weapon is the weapon of the counting house and of the marts of international trade. She would be foolish not to use that weapon, lying so conveniently to her hand.

THE FUNCTION OF THE COURT

Judge Augustus M. Roan, of the DeKalb municipal court, is one jurist, at least, who remembers that courts and the law were originally created for the service of the people. Judge Roan has decreed that for two days out of the year, regardless of the remaining 363, his court shall serve only to bring happiness and pleasure to the people of his district.

On Friday and Saturday of this week no regular legal business will be transacted in the DeKalb municipal courtroom. Instead, the room will become a headquarters for Christmas gifts. Food, clothing and toys will be assembled there by various organizations and from there redistributed among the needy families of DeKalb county.

So, on those two days, no grief-bearing legal papers will issue from Judge Roan's court. Instead, joy-bringing gifts will signalize the season of the year and prove that, though it may still be wisdom to "stay out of court" on normal business days, it is the highest wisdom of all to enter this court for the final two days of this week. However, those who enter must come bearing gifts for others, less fortunate.

Despite the photos showing Anthony Eden riding the cab with an engineer, his foreign birth and citizenship preclude him from running here for president.

JUDICIAL REFORM URGENTLY NEEDED.

On a number of occasions during the past 50 years, perhaps longer, many farsighted Georgia jurists and lawyers, and innumerable laymen, have been bold enough to point out the undeniable need for reorganizing and co-ordinating the judicial branch of the state government.

As a result of the somewhat sporadic interest thus aroused—as is so often the case when an apparently insurmountable task must be undertaken—many well-intentioned resolutions to abate certain evils have been adopted by the several bar associations in moments of enthusiasm. But, once the meetings adjourned and the delegates departed, the suggested reforms became a part of the permanent record—interred, so to speak, in the lesser tomes of jurisprudence. Paradoxically, the judges and lawyers themselves are the first ones to admit it. So, presumably, it won't be necessary to prove the point.

Failure to act on these none-too-frequently adopted resolutions may be attributed, perhaps more than anything else, to a divergence of viewpoint among the lawyers as to what reforms would be advisable and how they best could be put into operation. That is, from the standpoint of those engaged in the practice of law. Seemingly, throughout the years, the real purpose of the courts has been relegated to the background.

In England, a century ago, the members of the bar lost sight of the fact that the courts had been set up in the interests of the people—not for the purpose of providing a meal ticket for the barristers. There was much talk of reform, but they were loath to part with what was considered their ancient rights and prerogatives.

Eventually, however, an aroused people took the matter in hand. The lawyers had simply fumbled away their opportunity to popularize their profession. It was the layman, under the guidance of a few farsighted practitioners, who was determined to eliminate the procedural red tape which, throughout the centuries, had multiplied to such an extent as to have almost halted the judicial machinery set up for his benefit. The Judicature act of 1875 was the result.

It required time, of course, to put through these reforms. But the delay was caused by the lawyers' failure to act. The job could have been done much quicker. It took 30 years, for a similar reason, to revise the rules of procedure in the United States district courts. Once, however, it was decided actually to do something about cutting down litigating time—the bane of every citizen who is forced into court—instead of talking about it, new rules were drawn up and made effective within a few years.

A casual glance at the records of the appellate courts in the state of Georgia will, in itself, indicate something radically wrong with the judicial "system." A few years ago there were 4,500 cases "decided" by the higher courts during the course of a year. The supreme court had 890 and the court of appeals had 1,400 new cases in the 12 months! The appealed cases averaged 80 per 100,000 population. But Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina averaged between 25 and 30, while West Virginia had only 13 for each 100,000 people. Does this indicate, as it would seem, that the lower courts in Georgia, as well as the lawyers, spend an excessive amount of their time creating errors?

This flood of appellate business finds its principle source in the so-called "city courts." There are some 75 of them. They handle about half of the people's litigation. Each was formed by a special act of the legislature and each, very largely, has its own particular rules of procedure. The higher courts, it is claimed, spend much of their time examining the numerous statutes by which these courts were created, to properly adjudicate the matters brought before them "on error." In addition to these so-called city courts there are numerous other tribunals operating more or less independently, under their own rules, throughout the state.

Is there any logical reason why the "city court," or any other court, at Thomasville, for instance, should be operating under different rules of procedure than a similar court at Athens?

This judicial jigsaw puzzle, strange as it may seem, has no executive or administrative head. One court might be swamped with business while another, at the same time, might be doing nothing. But nobody has the power to do anything about it, to order one judge to the assistance of another, although both draw their salaries from the state treasury. Why don't the judges and lawyers get down to business, co-ordinate the system and have an executive head designated, preferably the chief justice of the supreme court, to see that it properly functions for the benefit of the people?

The answer may perhaps best be found in the recorded remarks of a former president of the Georgia Bar Association: "Most of these troubles," he told the convention, "may come from the fact that we have election of judges by the people. I am told by members of the court and others close to them that they don't change the rules because they are afraid they might do something that would antagonize the wishes of the people and the lawyers and put some extra work on lawyers. They (the judges) are afraid because they have to run before the people. They have given up their practice. Their income may be dependent upon public sentiment for or against them."

Although it is doubtful if this point of view is in accord with the opinion of the Georgia bench and bar, as a whole, the fact remains that nothing of a practical nature has been done to solve the problem. The judges need have no fear the people will object to having their cases expedited, even if reorganizing the courts is necessary to do it. Instead of "antagonizing their wishes" their long-hoped-for desires will have been fulfilled.

It is encouraging to note that some interest in revising court procedure is now being manifested among the judges and lawyers of Fulton county. This is undoubtedly a step in the right direction. But if anything is to be done, in the larger sense, the members of the bench and bar of the state of Georgia must bring about a complete reorganization of the judicial system. They should take hold of the job and do it, otherwise the people will do it for them.

TREASURY CLAIMS POWER WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Contrary to the general impression, the Treasury believes that it now possesses power enough to initiate the new policy of big governmental credits to South American nations. The process of elbowing Germany out of the trade of this hemisphere can begin tomorrow, apparently, if the President so directs.

The issue was confused in two directions when Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. disclosed the new policy's existence. First, he said that it was only being "studied." Second, he remarked that congressional approval would be necessary before direct intergovernmental loans could be made.

While doubts of the new policy's wisdom may still exist at the State Department, the Treasury has long passed the "studying" stage. Treasury officials, led by the secretary, ardently favor the policy. At Morgenthau's direction, an administrative setup to give the policy effect is being rapidly improvised, and Assistant Secretary Wayne Chatfield Taylor has already been chosen as the official primarily in charge. Always excepting the possibility of a congressional uproar, the new policy is, in fact, here to stay.

As for the need of congressional authorization, it's quite true that legislation would be needed for the type of loan of which the secretary spoke. The truth is, however, that the character of the Export-Import Bank and the statute setting up the stabilization fund now contain authorizations which would permit other types of credit. The credits would have to be extended in complex and roundabout ways. There might be some difficulty in permitting private banks to participate, as Secretary Morgenthau wisely desires to do. But the important thing is that the treasury is satisfied the credits can be extended.

BULLETS OR CASH Under the circumstances, the President and Morgenthau are confronted by an exceedingly thorny question. Both believe ardently in the new policy's wisdom. Both realize that, even if congress in the end approves, a resort to congress is sure to involve them in a protracted fight. The question is, whether or not to carry out the new policy up to Capitol Hill for approval, has been pointed out, the new policy means the use of America's best weapon, the vast supply of credit, in an open attack on the authoritarian nations. That, being a departure from the ancient traditions of isolationism, is a complete break with the past. Therefore, whether or not they have adequate powers, the President and Secretary Morgenthau are likely to leave the new policy to congress. To make such a move without congressional approval is too dangerous.

They have already prepared three effective arguments to make to the lawmakers. The first is simply that every American ideal and principle is now endangered by the march of Fascism. Munich has left no one else to defend our ideals and principles. We must do so ourselves, and the sooner we begin, the better our chance of winning out.

There is the economic argument, which is that major world trade is roughly divided three ways, between the United States, the sterling bloc nations, and the authoritarian nations. The sterling bloc is slipping. The authoritarians are gaining. If the United States wants to guard its position, and get its share of new business, this country must beat the authoritarians at their own game. And there is the argument of economy, that it's much cheaper to pass out a few hundred millions in credits than to build battleships enough to take on Japan and Germany.

A ROAD FROM BURMA There need be no doubt that the new policy is the kind of break with the isolationist past which is described above. The $25,000,000 Chinese credit, which must be taken together with the plans for South America, shows that. In the discussions leading up to the Chinese credit, the cautious State Department actually raised the question that it was too late to assist the armies of Chiang Kai-shek. The problem was studied with care, and at length maps convinced the President that the road from Burma would be practically used for the transport of supplies. The $25,000,000 is expected to be used for American trucks and other matériel. And if lending money for such a purpose is a neutral act, then John L. Sullivan was the greatest passive resistance man in recent history.

Joe Wolfe, chairman of the day at the annual Christmas party for blind and defective vision children, given by the Atlanta Lions Club, was emphasizing the need, among Americans, of understanding just what the words of "My Country 'Tis of Thee" mean. It was before the singing of that national anthem.

And, to show how grateful we all should be that, today, this is our country instead of some other, he quoted extracts from a letter he had received, written by a woman, a Jewess and a mother, in Germany.

That letter told how, with broken heart and tears interfering with her work, that mother was engaged in preparing the clothing for her two little children to take with them when, in a day or two, she would bid them goodbye, forever. They are among the innocent Jewish children who, because of the hateful racial policy of Hitler and his Nazis, are to be separated from their mothers, their families and all their dear things they know, and deported.

Those children will go to England, first, and from there to some place upon the earth's surface of which the mother cannot guess. She doesn't expect ever to hear of, let alone see, her own beloved youngsters again. Even the clothes she can provide are circumscribed—the Nazis allow each child to take only a pitifully limited amount.

At This Season Of The Year.
The words of such a tragedy strike more fearfully at normal hearts at this season of the year. That Christmas, dedicated to childhood and birth and motherhood, should be the time when cruelty, unchecked, strikes at the very heart of mothers, seems particularly frightful.

Yet, despite our horror at such actions and the philosophy that inspires this heartlessness, it is probably one of the strongest contributing factors to the downfall of Nazism and all for which it stands. For this one thing, it seems to me, is sure. The Nazis shall fail. They shall fail because they have outlawed from their own

Out again this Christmastime and doing extra duty is that old libel about the inability of ladies to select proper neckties for their menfolk. Neither wives, mothers, sisters, daughters, sweethearts nor pals, it is claimed, have the proper reserve in this department of Christmas giving. They specialize in the outlandish, are attracted by the atrocious, choose the impossible. Tie that can't be sold at any other time of the year are being snapped up now, it is said, by loving females for their men. But we, for one, don't believe a word of it. We consider that women's taste in neckties, as in all else beneath the sun, is unimpeachable and that even if we men don't at first like the ties we get we have only to wear them and trust the taste of our womenfolks to realize sooner or later that they are beautiful, manly, reserved and proper neckwear.

Fortunately for us, we have all the neckties we need. So it won't be necessary for any of the ladies of our family or acquaintance to bother getting us any. We need socks.

"After reading your comments on the book about Jefferson Davis and his flight," a lady writes from Palm Beach, "I wonder if you know that he was disguised in female clothes when he was captured." We wonder if our correspondent knows, in his book "Flight Into Oblivion," A. J. Hanna quotes Mr. Davis' own story of the capture in the "gray dawn of May 10, 1865," near Irwinville, Ga., including the following: "As it was quite dark in the night, I picked up what was supposed to be my 'raglan,' a water-proof, light overcoat, without sleeves; it was subsequently found to be my wife's, so very like my own as to be mistaken for as I started, my wife thoughtfully threw over my head and shoulders a shawl. I had gone perhaps 15 or 20 yards when a trooper galloped up and ordered me to halt and surrender, to which I gave a defiant answer, and, recognizing that the opportunity had been lost, I turned back, and, the morning being damp and chilly, passed on to a fire beyond the tent."

To this column's list of southern statues extraordinary, which includes the one to Eve in South Carolina, the one to the boll weevil in Alabama, the one to Pop-e in Texas and the one to a snail in Tennessee, comes another nomination: "You un-naturalized alien, you!" writes Grover Hall from Montgomery. "Have you never heard of the statue to John Wilkes Booth in the graveyard of a citizen of Troy, Alabama? I do not know where at last came of it, but 25 years ago the Advertiser printed one or more feature stories about it."

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

ON THE FENCE.
Dr. John R. Sampey, teacher in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., for the past 50 years and president of the institution at this time, was asked the other day at a banquet in Nashville, to tell the funniest incident that had ever occurred in his classroom.

He said that some years ago he had a man in middle life to enroll in his class. Months passed without this man ever offering a voluntary comment, "but always observing carefully everything I said and every suggestion by any member of the class," said Dr. Sampey. "I knew he was a thoughtful man, and I knew that some day he would likely have something to say that we would all listen to."

"And the day arrived, and I was the victim. We had under discussion a certain question of textual criticism. I gave the class the historic position of several scholars, concluding my remarks with the opinion that none of the authorities were quite certain about the date of this manuscript."

"And what do you personally believe about this matter?" asked a member of the class. "Well, for the present," replied Dr. Sampey, "I will have to be like the fellow on the fence—just waiting and watching for the right place to land."

By RALPH MCGILL.

THE LIBERAL PARTY? It begins to look, after all, as if Jim Farley and the party organization are to function in Georgia and the nation, as before.

The Jackson Day dinner is scheduled for early January and already there are signs the differences of the recent primary are to be ignored, if not forgot, for at least the time being. The campaign is on to obtain money for "The Party."

All talk of "purges" has ceased; all talk of a vigorous, militant "liberal party" seems to have gone up in thin air; all talk of a small group dictating the patronage in Georgia apparently was mere talk. No one knows who is to distribute the plums. A great many thumbs have been stuck into the patronage pie but so far no Jack Horner has been discovered in the corner.

The Jackson Day dinner ought to be made a success. The objective is to retain the Democratic party in power. The few successes of the Republican party have done much to eliminate some of the issues of the summer. The growing militancy of the Republicans has done much to bring the party back to the status of a party.

Last summer Tommy Corcoran and his associates sold the President the idea that it was "time to quit saving faces and start in kicking a few breeches." It now begins to look as if it were time to save a few faces.

AS A MATTER OF FACT

As a matter of fact, there has not been a chance to build a new "liberal" party in Georgia with the setup which the party had at the end of the September primary. It did not have a leader. It did not have an organization. It did not have any strength. The 70,000 votes which its candidate received were not stable.

The mere giving of the patronage powers to its defeated candidate would not have worked out to advantage. It would not have built a party, created an organization, developed any leadership, inspired loyalty or made more popular the administration. It was, if the administration ever intended to follow it, foredoomed to failure.

Meanwhile, no one knows. Mr. Lawrence Camp, the defeated candidate, generally is regarded as the man most likely to receive the patronage. Yet the good hard sense of the plan doesn't follow. It would seem that even Washington had not made up its mind.

The cold hard facts are that Washington must realize that to build up a liberal party not only in Georgia, but in South Carolina, Maryland or any other state where the New Deal suffered a defeat, there must be leadership. That they do not have. Then, too, it was good hard sense to realize, as did Jim Farley, that about 60 per cent of those who deserted during the "purges" were good party men. That was demonstrated by the Gallup poll.

We need the Democratic party to beat the Republicans.

AS TO TOMMY CORCORAN

Tommy Corcoran was one of the straw men set up in Georgia and South Carolina during the recent September primary. Anyone who thought at all must have realized that Corcoran, at 36 years of age, could not be other than a brilliant politician and a keen and analytical thinker. The fires of idealism may burn in him and no doubt do. But there is, assuredly, a hard, lean streak of practical thinking in him.

Bruce Barton, the Republican congressman, speaking to a group in the middle west not so long ago, said this of Corcoran: "In a city where the working hours had come to be from four to six hours a day, he learned to toil terribly for 14, 16 and even 18 hours a day. In a system which called a few hours of service each day a full measure, Tommy Corcoran learned to toil for the American people. He learned to work all night if need be. Until the Republican workers can learn something of that toil and of that willingness to serve the people of the United States there will be no defeating of the Democratic party."

There isn't any doubt but that Corcoran is smart, so to speak. He is willing to work and does work. The combination is difficult to beat—brains and the willingness to work.

Corcoran may be willing to break up the Democratic party. I doubt it. The odds are he will compromise to win in 1940 before deciding again it is time to "quit saving faces and kick a few breeches."

The cause of liberalism in the south waits on political leadership.

The Sailors Can't Save Themselves in a Storm if the Captain Doesn't Know His Job

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

"They can't put that over on us," said a labor leader a few days ago. "This profit-sharing scheme is just an excuse to pay low wages. What is worse, it leaves the worker's earnings at the mercy of bad management." That probably expresses the attitude of nine workers in every ten. Profit-sharing includes loss-sharing. Even with the best of management, every business has its good times and bad times. The employer must take his losses with his profits, but the workers are not willing to share any such precarious existence. Their first desire is security, and security includes a certain wage paid at a certain time. If you are not working for wages now, you doubtless did at some time in your life. Unless you were a very unusual kind of person, your chief interest was not the financial state of the business, but your own pay. As a leader of railroad workers said when a wage-cut was threatened last summer, you didn't care where the money came from so long as you got yours. Whether the boss got the money out of his profits or mortgaged the plant or pawned his wife's jewels didn't matter to you. You had earned your pay and you wanted it—all of it, on the dot.

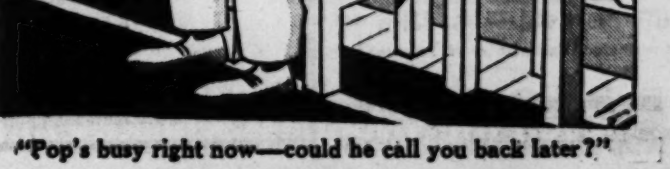

If the boss had shared profits with you in boom times, you would have called him a great guy; but if he had asked you to take a cut when business was bad, you would have suspected him of trying to gyp you. Let him take his own losses; he made plenty in good times.

Unless human nature has changed, the great majority of workers still prefer a certainty. It is suggested that profit-sharing should include management-sharing, but that would merely add another hazard instead of insuring benefits. The president of one of the air transport companies consults all of his employers and often follows their suggestions. Many executives have found that plan profitable, but there is a great difference between asking for suggestions and sharing authority. The ability to manage a business successfully is more rare than genius. Anybody can manage one by letting it alone in good times, but year in and year out the only survivors are those born with the knack.

If the boss is making a go of it, his employees should be first to insist that nobody interfere.

LAUNDRY BANDIT BINDS MANAGER TAKES $50 CASH

Negro Brandishes Gun After Posing as Customer — 12-Year-Old 'Triggerman' Arrested.

A negro armed with a revolver held up A. T. Harris, manager of a laundry at 656 Spring street, N. W., late yesterday afternoon and escaped with $50, police reported.

Harris told police the negro came into the building and asked for laundry belonging to a "Mr. Thompson." When Harris turned to get the laundry, police said the negro brandished a pistol, ordered Harris to the rear of the laundry and tied his feet and hands with rope. The negro then went to the cash register and took $50 and fled.

Meanwhile, juvenile court authorities held a 12-year-old negro boy charged with being the "trigger man" in a grocery store hold-up Friday night, while police jailed his alleged partner, Robert Pittman, an 18-year-old negro. Both were arrested Monday night. Detectives said both negroes

TWO GEORGIAN ON PAY-HOUR BODY

Will List Schedule for Apparel Industry.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Administrator Elmer F. Andrews, of the wage-hour division, Department of Labor, today named two Georgians, A. A. Lipshutz, of Atlanta, and W. C. Harris, of Winder, on committee No. 2 to recommend a minimum wage schedule for branches of the apparel industry employing more than 500,000 wage earners.

Under provisions of the fair labor standards act, the committee is authorized to recommend a minimum wage of not less than 25 cents an hour nor more than 40 cents an hour, which will not subsequently curtail employment. This industry committee is the second to be appointed under the act. The first committee was for cotton, rayon, silk and certain other textiles.

Both Mr. Lipshutz and Mr. Harris are employer members of the committee, of which there are 16. The rest of the committee are 16 employee members and 16 public members.

Cracksmen took approximately $150 Monday night from the safe of the Electric Storage Battery Service Company, 210 Walker street, S. W. Police records revealed, while burglars obtained $46 from a safe at the National Shirt Shop, 75 Peachtree street.

CHINA'S RED TROOPS ENTER MANCHOUKUO

Japanese Reported To Be Rushing Reinforcements to Danger Zone.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 21.—(Wednesday).—(AP)—Foreign reports said today that units of the Chinese Eighth Route (Communist) army had entered Manchoukuo and were causing widespread disturbances in the Japanese-dominated state.

As a result, these reports said, Japanese authorities were rushing troops from north China into the region along the Manchoukuo-Chinese border. Japanese officials here, following their usual procedure on Manchoukuo affairs, said they had no information.

At the same time the Chinese press reported trouble also was brewing in Formosa where Formosans and Chinese residents were said to be opposing Japan's war regulations and recruiting.

JAPANESE AIRMEN BOMB GUERRILLAS
SHANGHAI, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Three days of bombardments of Chinese positions between Pakhoi in extreme South China to Shanghai in the north by Japanese air and naval forces were reported tonight by a Japanese spokesman.

The attacks centered on guerrilla concentrations behind Japanese lines. Japanese army officers, outlining a five-year campaign to "pacify" North China and establish a Chinese government friendly to Japan, said wiping out such irregulars was the start of the pacification plan.

The Japanese established another of the Chinese-manned, Japanese-dominated regimes, with which they have replaced Chinese authorities in the occupied areas, in Canton. About 5,000 persons attended ceremonies installing Yang Tung-Yen former commander of the Wusung forts near Shanghai, as chairman, and Liu Chun-wing, former commander, of the Chinese fourth army, as vice chairman.

Scores of Santas Offer Sick Child Blood Donations

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Gladys Avaritt asked Santa Claus to give her life—and scores rallied to the good saint's aid today with offers of the blood the 10-year-old girl must have if she is to see other Christmases.

The hospital where Gladys lies a victim of a plastic anemia, a lethal blood disease, yesterday made public this simple, oral "letter to Santa Claus."

"I don't want Santa Claus to bring me anything this year except something to make me well." Doctors explained that "something to make me well" is blood. Blood for repeated transfusions through the next few weeks.

The Nashville post of the American Legion seized the opportunity at once and scores of husky Legionnaires trooped to the hospital for tests today. But others were touched, too, and firemen, policemen, plain citizens by the dozen joined this mercy parade.

Many were tested and tonight attendants said Gladys was assured the fighting chance plenty of blood can give.

One of the donors gave blood in a transfusion today and more such operations will follow as needed—dozens more, perhaps, before the final answer is known.

As for the waiting anything else, kindly Nashvilleans refused to take that seriously and today dozens of dolls and toys and other gifts were heaped about her bed in the children's ward.

SNYDER CASE JURY RETIRE FOR NIGHT

Talesmen Locked Up After Pondering Evidence for 4 and Half Hours.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A superior court jury in the case of Martin (The Gimp) Snyder, accused of attempting to murder Myrl Alderman, who succeeded him as the husband of Ruth Etting, former radio singer, retired for the night at 8:35 tonight.

After considering the evidence for four and a half hours, with an intermission for dinner, the jury reported it had decided to suspend deliberations until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

In final arguments, Miss Etting was likened today to Esmeralda in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"—a woman who forsook her crippled protector for a younger man.

Snyder's counsel, Jerry Giesler, castigated severely the former radio singer, who he said divorced Snyder after he had given 15 of the best years of his life to protect her career because she wanted a younger man.

Giesler told the jury Miss Etting had lived a life of deceit, that she accepted Snyder when she was a "mere chorus girl" because she saw in him the means to an end, and that although he was a cripple and not very well educated, she knew he could promote her professional career.

COAST GUARDSMEN DIE IN AIR CRASH

Four Killed Near San Antonio as Plane Falls in Flames.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A United States Coast Guard plane crashed at Boerne, 30 miles northwest of here, killing four men late Monday night.

The dead were identified as: Lieutenant P. S. Lyons, unit commander of the coast guard at El Paso.
Rupert H. Germaine, United States Coast Guard, El Paso.
George C. Latham, enlisted man, Fort Bliss, El Paso.
C. H. Peague, United States naval ensign, El Paso.

Sheriff Ed Bierschwald said he believed the pilot headed south after the plane caught fire in order to avoid landing within the town's limit. It crashed in a pasture only a few feet from the heavily traveled San Antonio-Boerne highway.

The bodies were charred and torn until none was recognizable. Bits of flesh were strewn over a two-acre area.

The body of Peague was not located until early Tuesday, although it was but a few feet from the wreckage.
Justice of the Peace H. L. Davis, Jr., said he heard the ship zooming over his home, then crash in a pasture only a block away. "Apparently it struck nose down and turned over several times," Judge Davis said. "Parts were scattered for 200 yards and none of the parts left was large enough to identify.

Kids Save Yule Tree, Lose Coats in Blaze

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Dec. 20.—(AP)—When flames today drove 38 school children from the West Leroy Methodist church, where they had been rehearsing a Christmas play, they defied the fire long enough to take with them their decorated Christmas tree, although most of them lost their hats and coats.

The 75-year-old frame structure burned to the ground. The cause of the fire was not determined.

Four injured youths were identified at the Strickland Memorial hospital here as Otis Weaver Jr. and James Ragsdale, both members of the high school football squad; Jack Williams and Chick Davenport.

Davenport was described as in a serious condition with a fractured skull. Attendants said the others were not badly hurt.

The highway patrolmen said the truck driver, Handy Ogletree, also of Griffin, escaped uninjured. The boys' automobile was demolished.

FLOYD OUT OF DEBT, NOW ON CASH BASIS

Half-Million Dollar Indebtedness Wiped Out in Eight Years.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
ROME, Ga., Dec. 20.—Floyd county taxpayers are receiving an unusual Christmas present.

For the first time in about 20 years, the county is trading on a cash basis.

The county has no unpaid bills except the current bills since December 1 of this year, and all outstanding warrants are being called in for payment.

Eight years ago the auditor's report, as of December 31, 1930, showed outstanding indebtedness of Floyd county totaling $555,509.38, and the current deficit adjusted was $194,732.40.

Today the records are reversed and the county is "out of the red" for the first time in two decades.

The auditor's report as of September 30, 1938, showed a current surplus of $116,433.26.

Floyd county continued to cut down on its indebtedness right on through the "depression" years, at the same time charging the taxpayers less and less. The statement of account for the tax year of 1930 stood at $390,392.38, the auditor's report showed, while the account for 1937 stood at $273,271.69, with an average saving of $118,022 during the past three years.

The administration, headed by Chairman W. A. Knowles, was re-elected after their first term without opposition.

Cooper's journey back and forth through the Fulton county courts in a four-year contest with the law was an odyssey of adroit maneuvers.

Back in 1932, On the night of November 4, 1932, Cooper stepped up to Chappell, who was depositing the Stoddard mail in a box on West Peachtree street across from the plant.

"Go back and open that safe or I'll let you have it," he commanded.

Chappell, a new employee at the dry cleaning plant, protested that he did not know the combination.

Cooper pulled the trigger and the bullet shattered Chappell's spine.

On his hospital bed a month later Chappell identified Cooper's picture among a number that were handed him.

"When you get this man you will get the man that shot me," he said.

A year later he died.

New Trial in 1933. Cooper was convicted in 1933 with no recommendation for mercy. His attorney appealed and a new trial was ordered.

In November, 1934, the second trial lasted six days, with Cooper sitting unemotionally in the courtroom as his lawyer and state's attorney battled to blows.

His defense was that he was in Miami when Chappell was shot. The jury debated for a little less than 24 hours, devoting 14 minutes to the verdict, recommending no mercy. Cooper stood up quietly and after protesting that he was being unjustly convicted, said to the court:

"Your honor, I regard life as the sweetest blessing bestowed on human kind and before I would resort to taking a pistol and taking a fellow creature's life without cause or provocation, I would rather lose my own life."

He was sentenced to electrocution.

His attorney continued the fight, and in 1936, Governor Talmadge, who signed the execution, commuted the sentence to life imprisonment.

At one time he had been accused by Wallace Hughes as an accomplice in the slaying of two men, Pee Wee Burns, Charlie Thompson and Fred Daniels.

Thompson and Daniels are under sentence of four years each. Burns was twice convicted and twice won new trials. A third trial is pending. Pee Wee is trying to earn a living in Atlanta today while he enjoys his freedom on bond.

Rivers Proclaims 26th a Holiday, Urges Vigilance

The Christmas proclamation of Governor Rivers yesterday urged Georgians to "breathe prayers for all the peoples of the earth; that they may know peace, brotherly love and wholesome compassion for all humanity."

He ordered all state government offices closed on December 26 in observance of the day. In another proclamation the Governor called on the people of the state to use care and consideration to bring about greater safety for everyone in the Christmas season.

He urged "that we exercise whatever degree of vigilance, care and consideration for others as may be necessary to insure ourselves and our fellow citizens against any untoward incident or any act fraught with danger to life, health or property, that it may redound to the greater safety and happiness of all our people and the greater glory of God."

erred the guard, locked him in a cell and escaped. They were captured later that same morning.

Their testimony ended, they were moved to Tattnell.

About three weeks ago, Wilson was transferred to the Candler county public works camp, where he was confined in an automobile with three men. He has not been found.

O'Connell has been working quietly in the prison printing plant until a few weeks ago, when he was transferred to the prison hospital.

Cooper, who was 29 years old, weighed 141 pounds and was five feet five inches tall. He had worked in the machine shop.

DUBLIN CITY COUNCIL
BOLSTERS YULE FUND

DUBLIN, Ga., Dec. 20.—(AP)—City council has solved the vexing problem of how to contribute police court fines to Christmas charities today by voting $50 to the empty stocking fund being raised by civic clubs.

Laurens county commissioners donated $50 to the same purpose to extend the benefits of the fund to needy families outside the city limits.

FOUR TO PROVIDE FOR 2 FAMILIES

N. Sunday morning, when Christmas arrives, to know that hunger will be averted during 1939 for her and her babies? Can you imagine a more desirable Christmas gift than this knowledge?

Mrs. "X's" problem of creating a home for her daughters, Cornelia, 10, and Rose Marie, 7, appealed to the generous business-

He understood something of the burden on the heart of a mother unable to be with her daughters.

Perhaps he understood how lonely and sad the two little girls would be without their mother. Cornelia and Rose Marie, living with relatives because their father had deserted their mother, frequently cried themselves to sleep at night.

Anytime, this gentleman pledged to help Mrs. "X" recuperate from her grief to get a job and make a home where she and Cornelia and Rose Marie could be happy together—even though the husband and father is gone forever.

How long it will take Mrs. "X" to become the breadwinner, no one knows, of course. But, however long, she will get her chance.

Mr. C.'s Story. Mr. C. is the father of three children, all of them of school age. His wife and their mother is dead. Mr. C.'s problem, that Atlantans can help him with, is to provide for his children while Mr. C. earns the $40 a month he is paid for his labor. Fifteen dollars a month is needed to help Mr. C. keep his children from growing up on the streets.

Mrs. Q. is the mother who starved herself almost to death to keep from eating the food her son thought should go to his own children. She needs to be given a feeling of independence from her son, for whom she sacrificed so much. He doesn't appreciate her as he should—but she must live. Mrs. Q. needs $20 a month.

Mr. F. has as acute a problem as any of the Ten Opportunities families. He has a wife and two children, for whom he has no money. His arm has to be treated, the rent has to be paid, and food has to be bought. But Mr. F. cannot work. It may be months before his hand and arm heals enough—and then he will have to get another type of job. Truck driving will be out of the question. Only $42 a month stands now between Mr. F. and his chance to be the "breadwinner" for his family.

Would Atlanta stand by and see this man go on the relief rolls—if he could get on, when he has such an opportunity to remain independent, with a little help? No one believes Atlanta would.

Small donations are beginning to come in a bit more rapidly now that Christmas is so near, but there aren't nearly enough of them to do the work the odd dollars and cents must do this next year.

Spare a dime or a dollar and send it to H. H. Trotti, vice president and business manager of The Constitution. He is treasurer of the Ten Opportunity Fund. Every cent you give goes to help the Ten Opportunity families. They need it and they deserve it.

COUNTIES CLAMOR FOR NEW MONIES TO MEET LOSSES

Frank Gross, of Stephens, Proposes State Levy as One Solution Open to General Assembly.

Increasing pressure from counties for compensation of losses of revenue resulting from homestead and personality tax exemptions thrust the issue to the fore yesterday as a major problem the 1939 legislature must face.

Frank Gross, representative from Stephens county who served as secretary of the important house ways and means committee in the last legislature, proposed yesterday the imposition of some new state levy with all the revenue going back to the counties for specific purposes like roads and schools.

Under his plan, each county would receive an amount equivalent to the money it loses by being forced to exempt homesteads

GOLD SHIELD LAUNDRIES

LADY CHIEF, LADY MAYOR NOT LADYLIKE

FRIENDLY, W. Va., Dec. 20.—(P)—All was friendly again today in this Ohio river front village, where the men work and women rule, after the police chief apologized for slapping the mayor.

The controversy, Mayor Stella Eddy related, began over three pigs.

She said she sent Police Chief Josephine Cline to arrest the owner of the pigs because the five-woman council passed an ordinance against keeping pigs in the village limits.

The chief reported back that the pig-keeper refused to be arrested. So, the mayor summoned him into court and fined him $5 and costs.

Then the mayor scolded the police chief, whereupon the chief slapped the mayor's face.

But Mayor Eddy said the chief had apologized and "everything is sweet." She added, however, that she had concluded that a woman's place wasn't in the police chief's office, although she would permit Chief Cline to serve out her term.

up to $2,000 and personalities up to $300 from taxes. The legislature would revise the figures on county losses at each biennial session to keep the distribution equitable.

Luxury Tax Mentioned.

Gross mentioned no specific type of state levy but described as possibilities a luxury tax or a tax on transactions.

He said he was very definitely opposed to the plan suggested by the board of managers of the Georgia Association of County Commissioners for the state to abandon its 4-mill ad valorem levy and let the counties increase their own property taxes to make up their losses.

"I oppose this plan," said he, "because 50 per cent of the ad valorem tax money in Georgia comes from six large counties—Fulton, DeKalb, Bibb, Muscogee, Chatham and Floyd—leaving only half the total revenue to 153 smaller counties."

On another angle of the 1939 legislative program, the state board of education held a session with Governor Rivers to draft the laws it may want to get through for the schools.

The board voiced approval of Governor Rivers' recent report asserting that the WPA should come to the aid of states particularly in the south to equalize educational opportunities because Georgia and other southern states had just about reached the limit of their ability to levy taxes.

Many of the legislators have expressed hope that the federal government through the Works Progress Administration will relieve some of the pressure on the general assembly of the state by giving schools a helping hand.

BOYCOTT HOLDS UP JEWS' EMIGRATION

Nazis Offer Co-operation for Cessation of World Economic Pressure.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Germany is demanding cessation of a world-wide Jewish boycott of German goods in return for financial co-operation in transferring 700,000 German Jews to new homes overseas, it was learned tonight.

This became known after a meeting of George Rublee, American director of the International Committee for Refugees, with financial experts of Great Britain, France and the Netherlands to study the German plan offered here last week by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht.

The German plan to finance emigration of German Jews by making other nations buy more German goods appeared to be dead since it was understood the United States, Britain, France and the Netherlands are not willing to commit themselves to buy more German exports to solve the refugee problem.

Nevertheless, it was learned that Rublee, former Washington lawyer, will go to Berlin next month to attempt to find other means of financing the emigration and settlement abroad of Germany's Jews.

MRS. W. C. LATIMER DIES IN 90TH YEAR

Body Taken to York, S. C., for Last Rites.

Mrs. W. C. Latimer, Atlanta resident for the past eight years and widow of a York, S. C., merchant, died here yesterday morning at the home of a daughter, Mrs. W. E. Dendy, on Woodrow Way, Oglethorpe University. She would have been 90 in March.

A native of York, she had been living here since the death of her husband. She was member of the Church of the Good Shepherd, York, virtually all of her life.

Other survivors are two other daughters, Mrs. Christopher Atkinson and Miss Ethel Latimer, of Columbia, S. C.; a son, G. Carl Latimer, Atlanta real estate broker, and a great-nephew, S. M. Latimer Jr., city editor of the Columbia State.

The body was taken to South Carolina last night and funeral services will be conducted at the York Funeral Home at 11 o'clock this morning.

RUMANIAN MINISTER TO HEAR CHURCH PLEA

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 20.—(P)—Dr. J. Nussbaum, a delegate of the International Society for Religious Liberty, Washington, received an appointment today with Interior Minister Armand Calinescu to urge reopening of a number of Baptist churches.

Nussbaum said he had evidence that the Baptists and Seventh-Day Adventists, who also are encountering difficulties in Rumania, pursued purely religious programs.

States supreme court, if necessary, with the contention that its operations cannot be restricted by the Sherman act since medicine is not a trade but a profession. Attorneys for the association have emphasized that point repeatedly.

Behind the case is a strenuous controversy over methods of providing medical care. At the National Health Conference here last July President Roosevelt's Committee on Health and Welfare declared that about one-third of the population—those in families with incomes of less than $1,500 per year—receive practically no medical care and are unable to meet the expense of sudden illness.

It recommended the establishment of pre-paid medical insurance programs for such groups. These would be patterned after the Group Health Association in Washington.

The American Medical Association was critical of such organizations, contending that supervision of medical care would be placed in the hands of officers of the organizations instead of being directed by physicians and that patients would not receive proper care as a result.

It is now proposing, through its member societies, the establishment of pre-payment medical care associations which will be organized and supervised by the local medical groups.

Cummings Vs. Roper Last Talks Too Much

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(P)—Attorney General Cummings captured the departing cabinet officers' handshaking championship from Secretary Roper today—escaped with only a scratch.

One of the 1,696 employees who shook his hand inflicted a minor cut with a finger nail. Despite his injury, Cummings stuck it out and averaged 20 handclaps a minute, bettering Roper's 15 per minute at the Commerce Department's reception yesterday.

Cummings, when asked for his version of why he won, said: "Oh, well, he is from South Carolina and probably has to stop and talk with everyone."

F. D. R. WILL SHIFT PENSION VERDICT

Congress Must Assume Responsibility for Any Increase, President Says.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today indicated that he will shift to the new congress responsibility for any increase voted in the maximum $15 a month which the government is authorized to divert to states to finance old-age assistance programs.

There has been considerable agitation among congressmen already here for the session which begins on January 3 for a sharp increase in the size of the government's donation. Under the present law the maximum amount which the government may contribute to an indigent person is $15 monthly. Because the government is required only to contribute an amount to match the state's grant, but not to exceed $15, the system is not uniform and the aged in some states receive less than the maximum of $30.

Veto Power.

The President said at his press conference today that he will not recommend specifically to congress that the size of the government's participation be increased. The legislators legally may do so without a White House recommendation, but the chief executive still would be able to exercise veto power.

He cautioned reporters not to speculate on the possibility that he will recommend to congress all proposals contained in the report of the Social Security Advisory Board. This agency recommended that the scope of the law be expanded to embrace an additional 5,000,000 persons and suggested other revisions.

The report did not touch on the subject of old-age assistance. Likewise, the President told reporters that he would not recommend to congress all the proposals of the interdepartmental health committee headed by Miss Josephine Roche, former assistant secretary of the treasury. This group urged far-reaching expansion of national health services.

Very Young Child.

The chief executive reminded the correspondents that the health problem is still a very young child.

He disclosed also that Miss Mary Dewson, a Democratic party leader, has resigned as a member of the Social Security Board because of ill health and that he had named Miss Ellen Woodward, of Mississippi, as her successor. Miss Woodward, director of theater projects under the Works Progress Administration, recently appeared before the house committee investigating un-American activities and gave Chairman Martin Dies, Democrat, Texas, a tongue lashing.

He said he planned several conferences with legislative leaders before congress starts, but declined comment on his discussion with Vice President John N. Garner last Saturday. He asserted that he and Garner had agreed on what to tell reporters. When the ruddy-faced Texan left he tilted his three-gallon hat back on his head, wiped his brow and said: "It's hot up there."

VOLUNTARY SERVICE.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(UP)—By the overwhelming majority of 270 to 9, the house of commons tonight approved a government motion that the house welcome the government's decision to rely upon voluntary service instead of ordering conscription.

EXCAVATION BIDS ASKED BY REGENTS

PWA Grants Expected for 10 Additional Buildings in Program.

Chancellor S. V. Sanford, now in Washington for conference with federal officials on the state's building program, announced through the office of the board of regents last night that bids on excavation work will be opened December 28 for 10 additional buildings which will cost an estimated $1,836,000 when completed.

These buildings, he said, have been deemed self-liquidating, and are believed eligible for PWA grants, for which applications are now pending. If approved, work must start not later than December 31.

Construction Bids.

Only bids for excavation work will be considered next week. Bids on construction and equipment of the buildings will be received early in the new year.

The buildings, and their estimated costs, are as follows: University, Athens, dormitory and dining hall, $700,000. Georgia Tech, three dormitories, $366,000.

South Georgia Teachers' College, Statesboro, dining hall, $320,000. North Georgia College, Dahlonega, two dormitories, $160,000. University of Georgia Medical school, Augusta, research building, $180,000.

Other Excavation Bids.

The building committee of the regents will open bids tomorrow on excavation of a library building at the North Georgia College, Dahlonega; girls' dormitory, dining hall and auditorium at the University of Georgia, and repair of a building at the university. The four excavation projects are estimated to cost $4,000, while the repair of the building at the university will cost approximately $25,000. The buildings are declared necessary to accommodate the large increase in enrollment in the system.

MAN, 81, HIT BY AUTO, SUCCUMBS IN MACON

MACON, Ga., Dec. 20.—(P)—Henry C. Parker, 81, former locomotive engineer, died in a hospital today of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Parker's wife died November 19.

He was walking on the Jeffersonville road when he stepped into the path of an automobile driven by O. N. Nebbes, of Savannah. Officers who investigated said Nebbes did not appear at fault.

Mr. Parker is survived by a daughter, Mrs. J. H. Byington, of Shreveport, La., and a son, John Henry Parker, who moved here two weeks ago from Cedartown to be with his father.

Dr. Fishbein Says Physicians Will Fight With 'Every Means'

Cites Policy Laid Down by House of Delegates To Meet Situation.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—(P)—The American Medical Association announced today it would defend "to the utmost with every means of its power" its stand on contract medicine which resulted in indictment of the association and some of its members and affiliates for violation of the anti-trust laws.

The association, governing body of a majority of the nation's physicians, outlined its stand in an official statement by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the association's journal. He cited a resolution of the house of delegates which laid down the policy to be followed in the event of an indictment.

Dr. Fishbein quoted a statement by the board of trustees to the special session of the house of delegates in Chicago on September 16:

"Shortly after the termination of the National Health Conference of the association and the press of the United States indicating that the Department of Justice of the United States government proposed to seek an indictment of the American Medical Association as a monopoly unless the American Medical Association through its constituent society in the District of Columbia consented to certain stipulations satisfactory to the Department of Justice in relationship to the nature of medical practice."

Dr. Fishbein said that after a reference committee studied the subject, the house of delegates adopted this statement: "Your reference committee highly commends the board of trustees for its willingness to submit to investigation by any authorized agency on the nature of its organization, work, conduct and activity. Firm in the belief in the propriety of our officers, and confident of their adherence to established federal law, your reference committee recommends that in the event of an indictment, this house of delegates give full support to the board of trustees in defending such litigation to the utmost with every means of its power, exhausting if necessary the last resource of distinguished legal talent to establish the ultimate right of organized medicine to use its discipline to oppose types of contract practice damaging to the health of the public."

POPE IS THANKFUL LIFE WAS SPARED

Holy Father, 81, Enters 60th Year of Priesthood.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 20.—(P)—Pope Pius XI knelt today in a long prayer of thanksgiving that his life had been spared to enter the 60th year of his priesthood.

He prayed after mass in his private chapel, surrounded by flowers sent from all parts of Italy and from as far away as Paris by his devout admirers on this anniversary.

A Vatican news service reported the 81-year-old Holy Father's health was good. He suffered an attack of cardiac asthma November 25.

BRITONS PRAISE YATES' PUTTING IN TOURNAMENT

Atlanta Golfer Credited With Greatest Display in Recent History.

By SCOTTY RESTON.
LONDON (Correspondence of the Associated Press).—The reputation of America's amateur golfers declined in England this year despite the victory of Charlie Yates, of Atlanta, in the British amateur championship.

British critics from scholarly Bernard Darwin to Henry Cotton believe 1938 saw the end of the era of great swingers from the United States.

This opinion is based on the play of the American Walker cup team in the British amateur championship at Troon and in the Walker cup matches at St. Andrews.

Yates won the amateur by defeating Cecil Ewing, of Ireland, 3 and 2, but Britain won the Walker cup for the first time since the competition started in 1922. The score was 7-4.

Nobody over here has anything but praise for Yates' accomplishments at Troon and St. Andrews. He has been credited generally with displaying the greatest putting exhibition in the recent history of British golf.

In 11 rounds of golf at Troon and St. Andrews, he was only one over four. This record over two of the severest courses along the Scottish coast against wind and rain and on his first attempt in this country must be one of the epics of international golf.

Yates' accomplishment is, in the eyes of British critics, magnified by two other facts: On his way to the amateur title he beat Johnny Fischer—considered over here the finest amateur golfer in the United States—and Hector Thomson, who is generally regarded as the finest swinger in British amateur golf.

But in spite of this liberal personal praise, the critics are disappointed in the ability of the American amateurs as a whole.

Fred Apostoli Wins By T. K. O. in 4th

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 20.—(UP)—Fred Apostoli, 161 1-2, San Francisco, recognized in New York and California as middleweight champion of the world, won on a technical knockout in the fourth round of a 10-round non-title fight with Al Cocozza, 165, New York, before 2,000 fans at the arena tonight.

Referee Billy Conway halted the uninteresting affair after 35 seconds of the fourth round, after Apostoli had staggered Cocozza with two left hooks to the chin. Despite the fact that Cocozza didn't hit the canvas, Conway stepped in between the fighters and grabbed Cocozza.

Memphis May Sell Shortstop Blakeney

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 20.—(P)—Shortstop Buster Blakeney, one of the best infielders in the Southern association last season, may be sold in an effort to bolster the Memphis Chick's batting attack, President Tom Watkins indicated today.

A flashy ball hawk but woefully weak at the plate, Blakeney came to the Chicks from the Philadelphia Athletics in 1937. Watkins did not say what teams were dickering for Blakeney's services.

Vols Have Glance At Oklahoma Plays

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 20.—(P)—Tennessee's Vols looked over diagrams of plays used by the Sooners of Oklahoma at their practice session this afternoon. The two teams met January 2 in Miami's Orange Bowl game.

Major Robert Neyland's boys did less huffing and puffing than in Monday's scrimmage, the first after a lengthy lay-off.

Coaches continued to stress conditioning exercises.

All in the GAME

by Jack Troy

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20.—It was very enlightening today to hear from his own lips that Tyrus Raymond Cobb was not born in Royston, Ga., his accepted birthplace, and that, furthermore, he was not born in any town.

Actually, Cobb is a little vague about where he was born in Georgia. He knows the location vaguely. He first saw the light of day on his father's plantation in Banks county, not far from Mt. Airy and not so very far from Cornelia.

One of the first persons the Tech party saw at the train was Ty Cobb, who now is a country squire at Atherton, which is some 28 miles away. Ty greeted Coach Alex and the party warmly.

Later on, Cobb took a couple of us in tow and we were his guests at the Family Club for the annual Christmas party. The Family Club is limited to a membership of 225 in a town around 700,000 people.

No ladies are admitted to the Family Club and the president is known as the "mother-in-law." It is a very intimate and congenial club which includes many of the prominent businessmen of San Francisco in its limited membership.

I always had been led to believe Ty Cobb had few friends and that, while he had plenty of money through wise investments, probably the only fun he ever would get out of it would be counting it.

But that's not so. Cobb is a well liked and highly respected member of this community. He is cultivating friendships and it is very easy for him to do. He has a very engaging personality and perceptibly will go out of his way to do something nice for you.

Another well-known personage at the train was Ed Hamm, Tech's great broad jumper of the past. Hamm is traveling for a concern and San Francisco is in his territory. It was a great kick for Hamm to see home folks once again.

FRANK FREEMAN GREETED TECH.

Frank Freeman, Tech '08, was waiting at the station as the train pulled in.

Now a prominent Paramount Pictures executive on the west coast, Freeman gave the Tech party a resounding one-man reception. There were other Tech people and friends of Tech at the station, but Frank Freeman's welcome surpassed all the rest.

Funny thing, Freeman's son, Pete, was senior manager of the Tech team last year. He is now working in New York. Had Tech gone to the coast last year, as scheduled in the event California didn't play in the Bowl, Pete Freeman would have had a trip but his father would not have been able to greet him. He then had headquarters in New York.

It was only a month ago that he was transferred to Hollywood. So things worked out just right for Frank Freeman, and it really doesn't make any difference in so far as Pete is concerned because eventually he will be out here with his dad.

Frank Freeman's folks live in Atlanta and this is to be the first Christmas he will have missed with them in a long time. It will be the first he has ever missed with a sister, Mrs. John Baldwin. So Mrs. Baldwin has sent him a special Meriwether county ham and a fruit cake which she baked herself.

Probably Frank Freeman will attend the Georgia Tech Christmas tree party in San Francisco, since he is to be there for the game.

Then after the game he will return to Los Angeles with the party and personally conduct them on a tour of the Paramount studios.

The Tech party is in good hands.

SANTA CLAUS IS COMING TO TOWN.

Owing to the fact that Santa Claus will be occupied in so many other places, your operative has learned that Tech has arranged for something very special.

The last time Tech arranged a Christmas party was two years ago at the Biltmore in Atlanta when California was the guest.

By a very special dispensation from Santa Claus, Ralph McGill donned red suit and whiskers and passed out the presents with appropriate side remarks.

Ralph has gone afield and is no longer available to play the role of Santa for football teams, but by very good fortune Tech has been able to recruit an able successor from its own party.

Mr. Jimmy Setze Jr. and Mr. McGill resemble each other no little as regards build and Mr. Setze very graciously has consented to take the role.

I understand that Hollywood is ready to put in a counter-bid for Mr. Setze's services, but his loyalty to Tech forbids acceptance.

So Tech is very fortunate. And, as Santa Claus is perfectly willing, the success of the Christmas tree party is assured in advance.

OLE MEHRE UNIVERSITY.
It so happened on the way out that several co-eds from the University of Mississippi boarded the train. They were going to various homes in Texas for the holidays.

By an odd coincidence, they met members of the Tech team and engaged them in conversation.

And during the course of the conversation, one pert little lass revealed some future plans at Ole Miss.

They are going to change the name of Ole Miss to Ole Mehre before the next football season.

Ole Mehre gave them a football team they can't forget at Ole Miss and they are very appreciative. They remember all about the old squabble of changing the name of Arkansas, but it doesn't mean a thing.

It's to be Ole Mehre University from now on. The University of Ole Mehre. And I, speaking out of turn again, think they've got something there. Poets are born, of course.

THE OLD STUFF.
There was the same old press reception. I mean Tech

WARREN STOPS BALDWIN QUINT HERE BY 38 TO 33

Hogansville and Donkey Basketball Coming on Thursday Night.

By THAD HOLT.
Harassing their clever opponents with a dogged and foreproof defense, Warren last night handed the crack Abraham Baldwin five its first defeat in five starts this season in a thrilling game, 38-33.

With the return to form of Virlyn Moore, who sank 11 points and played a fine floor game, and some slick shooting by Ted Cabiness, black-headed forward, who led the night's scorers with 12 points, Shep Lauter's team played a dazzling game to beat a polished, smooth collegiate machine which handled the ball with amazing skill.

Abraham Baldwin, superbly coached, did not throw an errant pass all night. The Tifton Ga., lads screened every play with the kind of blocking and deception that a lot of football coaches would like to have. And yet, the Warren players were so cat-like and tenacious on defense that all the offensive brilliance of the invaders could not enable them to slip through for payoff shots. They had to fire from long range and at that they got fair results.

"We beat the best team we have met this season," declared Shep Lauter afterwards. "I was well pleased with our defense and fight. If the boys will only follow their shots off the backboard, we might make it interesting for Hogansville Thursday night."

Hogansville is the rangy team which handed J. P. C. its first defeat in four years on its home floor last Sunday night. Another feature of Thursday night's card will be the debut here of donkey basketball, with the players riding trained burros and shooting at goals on giraffes' heads.

Warren Reserves will play an unannounced opponent in the opener of this three-evening program at 6:30. Twenty-five per cent of the proceeds will go to the Christmas funds of the three Atlanta newspapers.

But to last night's game: Warren trailed almost all of the first half, finally pulling up and ahead just as the gun sounded for the intermission at 16-14.

Abraham Baldwin came back like a champion and forged ahead, 22-17 after five minutes of play, but Ted Cabiness, Virlyn Moore & Co. were not to be denied and with eight minutes left to play, had gone back in front by 26-22.

They stayed there to the end of the game. Warren Reserves lost their first game of the season, bowing to the strong Piedmont Laundry, 54-49.

GALENTI RANKED TOO HIGH, JACOBS

By JACK CUDDY.
NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Maybe Santa Claus is punch drunk:

When Promoter Mike Jacobs, of the Twentieth Century Club, Hippodrome, Madison Square Garden and points west, was informed that the National Boxing Association still persisted in naming beer-guzzling Tony Galento as the No. 1 heavyweight challenger, he clicked his store teeth and said, "Those guys are punchy."

Promoter Jacobs did not scream as he gave off this shrewd observation. He had done his screaming on this subject a couple days before.

When Wales' gift to American wild life—particularly the flora and fauna of the night clubs—had suggested that he, Master Tommy Farr, be matched with barrel-bodied Galento.

"Uncle Mike Jacobs shrieked, that time, 'I don't want Galento. I'm trying to run a boxing business—this year, next year and for the years to come. I'm not putting on any Philadelphia bouts. Let Galento go out and beat some top-light heavyweights. Then maybe we can give him a bout.'"

Within 24 hours after Uncle Mike had shouted his distrust of Galento, the N. B. A. quarterly ratings were placed before him. And he saw the "Christmas present" that had been delivered to him.

Within 24 hours after Uncle Mike had shouted his distrust of Galento, the N. B. A. quarterly ratings were placed before him. And he saw the "Christmas present" that had been delivered to him.

Uncle Mike said, "Lissen, I'm promoting fights in New York. I'm raking my dough in the biggest promotions in the world. And I have to give the fans the fighters that the fans know are tops. And you can always depend upon the fans."

"I'll give you my ranking of the heavyweights, as I figure the fans rank them—and the fans will pay to see them give the fans this before. But I'll give you the rankings on a dollars and cents basis—on the box office basis, which is the fans' rating."

First off Jacobs admitted that Joe Louis is heavyweight champion. After Louis, Jacobs listed a trio of top challengers in one bracket. He said they were the three outstanding contenders: Max Baer, John Henry Lewis and Lou Nova.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 20.—(UP)—Jockey Sterling Young received a broken collarbone and a dislocated hip today when his mount in the eighth race at Tropical Park stumbled and fell after the finish.

JOEL HUNT OUT, BUTTS IS IN, ASSERTS RUMOR

Rumors sizzling over the grapevine wires have it that Joel Hunt, left, will be replaced by Assistant Wallace Butts as the new Georgia head football coach. Nothing has been definitely established, as university officials have issued no positive statements.

Connie Mack Celebrates 76th Birthday on Friday

"I'll Stay in Game As Long As My Mind Is Clear"—Mack.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20.—(P)—Connie Mack, beloved manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, looked forward today to his 76th birthday come Friday and asserted he'd stay in baseball until "I don't know my business—or trade a .300 hitter for a .200 hitter."

"People ask if I am tired of baseball," said Mack. "I can only give one answer! There is nothing in baseball I dislike."

"What's more, I'll stay in the game as long as my mind is clear. They say when a man advances in years his mind isn't so clear. When I reach the stage where I don't know my business or trade a .300 hitter for a .200 hitter, then I'd like to stay around here."

Actually, Connie will be 76 on Thursday the 22d. For years he believed his birthday was December 23 until last year when someone dug up records in the East Brookfield (Mass.) town hall showing he was born a day earlier. He's going to stick to the December 23 date for his celebrating, nonetheless.

The veteran leader enjoys excellent health and is active and vigorous. A year ago it was different. Then he was suffering from the effects of a long illness and except for few occasions he remained indoors most of the winter.

His average day now starts at 7:30. He's in his office from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. and rarely retires until after 10:30 p. m.

Even his diet is little restricted these days. Lamb chops for breakfast, roast beef, lamb or chicken for dinner and above all—pie.

Connie looks forward to the future with all the enthusiasm of a youngster.

"I've had my thrills and disappointments. I hope I can get more exciting moments out of the game. There won't be any disappointments. I decided the long ago—in 1921. He recalled an experience when his Athletics were deep in the American league cellar position and fumbled a chance to pull themselves out.

The thrill of his lifetime, he says, came in 1929 when Bing Miller's ninth inning double defeated the Cubs and gave the Athletics the world championship.

SIKES REPORTED TO BE RELEASED WITH JOEL HUNT

'Can't Understand It,' Says Young Bulldog Mentor.

Complete reorganization of the University of Georgia football and athletic coaching staff is to be announced in the near future, it was learned yesterday from reliable sources.

Joel Hunt, head coach who succeeded Harry Mehre after the former Notre Dame center had spent 10 years there as head coach, is to be replaced along with most, and probably, all his assistants, according to the information obtained yesterday by representatives of The Constitution and other newspapers.

Wallace Butts, assistant and former Male High coach and Mercer star, is slated to replace him. It is understood that Quinton Lumpkin, Georgia's great center, will fit into the picture and obtain a place on the coaching staff.

AT BATON ROUGE.
Reached at Baton Rouge, La., where he is spending the holidays, Hunt said of the published report: "I simply cannot understand it. My three-year contract still has two years to run. I haven't resigned and I don't intend to resign."

Dr. W. O. Payne, Georgia athletic director, said that he and President Harmon W. Caldwell, of the institution, were in agreement that there would be no announcement regarding the tenure of Hunt "until any other coach" until the athletic board meets January 10.

"I don't think our board is unanimous on the coaching situation," he added, "but I am satisfied an agreement will be reached January 10. The January meeting is the time we usually settle our coaching staff."

Informed of Hunt's statement regarding a contract, Dr. Payne said the institution "has never, to my knowledge, had a three-year contract in athletics."

He said the system of "no written contracts" with athletic coaches has been adhered to since Dr. S. V. Sanford was president of the institution. Dr. Sanford relinquished active charge in 1931.

Questioned specifically regarding a "resignation" by Hunt, Dr. Payne protested he did not wish to be drawn into a "long-range controversy" with Hunt "or any other coach."

NOT APPROACHED.
Butts, in a telephone conversation, told The Constitution "no official of the university has approached me about taking the head football coaching job."

Butts said he was given a one-year contract as assistant coach and "hoped to keep it."

"I'm sorry that these rumors got out," Butts said. "As far as I know, no such move is contemplated. I have not been approached on the subject and am sorry the rumors are being circulated."

ORANGE BOWL TO ADD SEATS

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 20.—(P)—With less than 700 tickets left for sale for the Orange Bowl football game, the city today appropriated $7,000 to erect 5,000 additional temporary seats at the west end of the stadium, to be sold for $2.20 each.

The recreation board was advised that the stadium, erected only last year and with a normal seating capacity of about 24,000, must be enlarged to meet increasing demands. Both Tennessee and Oklahoma Universities were clamoring for more tickets in addition to the thousands already assigned to them.

Memphis alone will send 400 persons in one group and additional requests have been received from there. A trainload will come from Jacksonville.

USE BATTERY.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 20.—(P)—John T. Ireland and Thomas C. Bradley, stewards at the fair grounds race track, announced today that an investigation had disclosed that A. Daniels, jockey, had been given a battery with instructions to use it on Baby Joe, a horse entered in this afternoon's third race.

Jackets Work Out in San Francisco; Ty Cobb Welcomes Team

BOTTARI RATED ALL-AMERICAN GREET TECHS!

Jackets Given Psychological Edge by Fair Coast Writers.

By JACK TROY.
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 20. One of the very first things that greeted Georgia Tech players before they went out for their initial coast practice this afternoon was newspaper headlines—"Bottari Makes Consensus All-America Team."

Which amounts to Bottari being a real All-American. In order to make a consensus team, a player has to be on several recognized All-American lists.

It is not difficult for the Tech boys to keep Bottari in mind because, judging by the talk, he is the outstanding back on the Pacific coast. Everywhere football men gather and talk out here, they wind up on the subject of either Bottari or the rain.

The rain, by the way, has been coming down for days but there are signs that it will clear before long. It is most embarrassing to the natives.

FIRST PRACTICE.
Tech's opening practice, held on a practice field near Kezar stadium, where the annual Shrine game is played, consisted largely of running. After a couple of days of such work and the boys have regained their land legs, Coach Alex will throw in a couple of scrimmages.

There was another very interesting consensus today and that is the Tech team is figured to be strong competition for California.

The newspapermen here who write with an eye toward fairness believe Tech actually may have a psychological edge on the Golden Bears.

They are afraid California's season ended with the Stanford game and that that the Bears may be taking Tech lightly.

"Any team that ties Alabama," they say, "deserves utmost consideration." They haven't forgot the Southern California-Alabama game.

If the Tech boys survive the scrimmages all in one piece, they will meet the Bears on the day after Christmas with the strongest lineup of the season.

COBB INSPIRES TEAM.
Ty Cobb, who has followed the California team all year and knows their personnel and football habits very well, believes a fired-up Tech team will give them fits.

Cobb, who shoots golf in the low 70s, is an ardent follower of football besides. He'll see the Tech-California game and then go to Pasadena for the Duke-Southern California Rose Bowl game.

The only casualty on the Tech squad, Buck Murphy, is coming around nicely. Murphy, who injured an arm in scrimmage, is sure to be able to start at a blocking back post.

Much attention is being paid to the kicking of Howard Ector. He has improved a great deal and may be able to help Hawk Gavette. The latter, however, is tried and true under fire and he'll probably do most of it.

Coach Alex is counting on good kicking strongly in making preparations for the game.

SCORE 81 POINTS.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Dec. 20.—In the two games played by Alabama, the Tide has scored 81 points. The opponents have tallied 53 points.

WHITE, DANOWSKI TOP PRO LEAGUE

Whizzer Leads Ground-Gaining; Ed Sets League-Passing Record

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Byron (Whizzer) White, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, a pro football rookie, and Ed Danowski, of the New York Giants, a veteran of the game, today were crowned 1938 champions of the National Professional league in ground gaining and forward passing, respectively.

White, who received $15,000 for what probably will be his only season in the cash-for-carry trade, piled up 567 yards in 152 attempts. The former University of Colorado All-American, only first-year man to lead in any division of play this year, beat out Tuffy Leemans, of the Giants, leader in 1936, who made 463 yards in 121 tries.

Danowski, in setting a new league record with 70 completions in 129 passes for a 54.2 percentage, displaced Sammy Baugh, of the Washington Redskins, and boosted his own lifetime mark from 48.3 per cent to 49.8, on 255 completions in 512 attempts over five years. Baugh was second with 63 of 128 complete for 49.2 per cent, and Ace Parker, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, third with 63 of 148 for 42.5.

CHICKS WILL PLAY
Athletics and Phils

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 20.—(AP) Frank Longini, secretary of the Memphis baseball club, announced today the Chicks would play both the Philadelphia Athletics and the Phillies in pre-season games here next spring.

Dec Prothro's National league team will come into the new manager's home town April 6, followed the next day by Connie Mack's American leaguers.

TONELLI RETURNS To Trojan Drill

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 20.—(UP) Light but steady rains failed to halt the University of Southern California football team today and the players drilled on offense for two hours in a Rose Bowl workout brightened by the appearance of Right Guard Tony Tonelli, who has been out for three weeks. Although he did not practice, Tonelli ran around the track for his first exercise since suffering the injury.

COLD WEATHER CUTS
T. C. U. Grid Practice.

FORT WORTH, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A biting north wind cut short the workout today of the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs. Most of the drill was devoted to dummy offensive scrimmage.

Coach Dutch Meyer indicated he would use 22 or 23 players in the Sugar Bowl football game against Carnegie Tech in New Orleans January 2, regardless of score. He intends to give the regulars long periods of rest.

TWO AUBURN STARS
Get Knee Operation

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 20.—(AP)—George Kenmore, sophomore backfield star at Auburn last year, awaited the outcome of a knee operation here today to see whether he would resume his gridiron career in 1939.

Kenmore was injured before the first game this year and his loss was a major blow to Auburn hopes.

Frank Bartlett, a freshman back at Auburn, underwent a similar operation yesterday and is in the same hospital.

Henry McJenkins will get the manager's award.

Winners of sweaters are Charles Bowen, Phil Lachicotte, Lewis Henson, Joe Nixon, Walter Bracwell, and Jack Pounds, players, and Tom Sheppard and Allen Hart, managers.

Letter winners are Phil Lane, Reid Aiken, Ben Perry, Harry Jones, Quinton Chandler, Dave Barron, Ernest Hyde, Charles Parks, Pat Roberts, Harry Grant, Ed Corry and John Woodall.

A jacket will be given to Jim Parks Jr., father of young Jimmy Parks Jr., who died December 6 from an injury received the last week of practice. Parks played on Tech High's first championship team in 1913 and 24 years later his son was a member of Tech High's state championship team of 1937.

ANGERED CROWDS THREATEN SLAYER

California Killer and Guard Forced To Run for Safety.

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 20.—(AP) Shouts of "Get the rope" arose from an angry courtroom crowd here today as Rodney Greig, 21, and his guard ran for safety after the youth was ordered held on a charge of slaying Leona Vlught, 19-year-old beauty school instructor.

Spectators were excluded from the courtroom during the hearing. Police Judge Chris B. Fox ordered Greig held for slaying Miss Vlught December 7 in a "Lovers' Lane" district near here.

A steel grill held back the surging crowd while Bailiff Walter Spearing and Greig ran down a corridor and dodged into an elevator.

The crowd booed and there were cries of "Get the rope!" Earl Warren, district attorney, said Greig confessed the killing.

MOCK TRIAL TONIGHT BY JEWISH STUDENTS

Students of the United Hebrew school will participate in an elaborate Chanukah program at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Jewish Educational Alliance on Capitol avenue. The program will include songs, recitations, short talks and will be climaxed by a mock trial entitled, "Jewish People vs. Jewish Parents."

Parents of all children attending the school have received summons to come and listen to the verdict of their own sons and daughters. Brief addresses will be delivered by H. A. Alexander, president of the school, and by Rabbi Harry H. Epstein. Superintendent Z. Tabor will act as master of ceremonies. The public is invited.

HUGH HERBERT HURT IN HOLLYWOOD CRASH

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—(UP) Hugh Herbert, the screen comedian, was injured slightly today when his automobile was struck by a truck skidding on a rain-swept highway.

Passing motorists took him home where he was treated for head and face lacerations. Later he was taken to hospital for X-ray examination.

LAND MINE BLASTS REBELS IN MADRID

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), Dec. 20.—(AP)—The explosion of a land mine under an insurgent stronghold in the University City section of Madrid was reported today in meager dispatches from Spanish civil war fronts.

Government sources said the besiegers of Madrid suffered heavy damage when the explosion ripped off a wall of the Institute of Hygiene and wiped out several machinegun nests.

pulled into Los Angeles—I have always wanted to call it Lost Angels—as the condemned prisoner eating a hearty breakfast.

Tech has no chance to win. California, despite a loss to Southern California, is a super team. The oranges are larger and juicier out here, too.

They have larger mountains, with more snow. They have a superiority complex on all matters. I don't know why this is not, instead of Washington, recognized as the capital of the United States. After all, it is the recognized capital to the residents.

There is nothing superior to California and, knowing this, I find it hard to believe the records southern teams have made in competition with the superior forces of the west coast.

There must be an answer, but it is as elusive as the goose at the moment. It is a bit disheartening, however, to have come all this way only to participate in another lost cause.

Of course, the attitude of the Tech team is not to be considered in the matter. They just came for the ride, too.

LONDON CABINET FACES SHAKEUP

Junior Leaders Head Revolt; Chamberlain Seeks To Hush 'Rumors.'

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Brewing revolt among junior members of the cabinet threatened tonight to force a government shakeup early in the new year despite Prime Minister Chamberlain's efforts to dismiss the dissension as "newspaper rumors."

Speaking in the house of commons, Chamberlain waved aside questions as to whether he was preparing to reshuffle his cabinet.

George Buchanan, Laborite, asked the prime minister whether he had any statement to make regarding cabinet troubles before parliament starts its Christmas vacation.

"The honorable member must not attach too much importance to rumors of the press," Chamberlain said.

Political quarters insisted, nevertheless, that the threat was deeper than mere political talk and involve not the government's foreign policies but its rearmament program.

A number of men of junior ministerial rank, mostly under-secretaries, were said to be demanding the resignation of four key cabinet men, as follows:

Minister of War Leslie Hore-Belisha, accused of "misleading" the country and parliament and even the cabinet itself regarding the progress of British rearmament, particularly in connection with the supply of anti-aircraft guns.

Sir Thomas Inskip, minister of defense co-ordination, who allegedly failed to take advantage of a "breathing spell" after the Munich four-power pact to speed up rearmament.

Viscount Runciman, lord president of the council, and Earl Winterton, special assistant to the home secretary, who are among a half-dozen leaders in charge of rearmament work.

CONTROL DEMANDED, EXCHANGE HEAD SAYS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 20.—(UP)—The American people "demanded" and received government regulation of the security markets which was as logical a development as was the early history of the New York Stock Exchange," William M. Martin Jr., president of the exchange, declared tonight.

"The Securities and Exchange Commission, like the New York Stock Exchange, was set up to fill a need, to meet the dictates of economic change," Martin told members of the "St. Louisans" at their annual meeting.

U. S. Prisoners Are Permitted One Yule Bundle

Inmates of the Atlanta federal penitentiary will be permitted to receive "one" package, which must not weigh more than two pounds "exclusive of wrappings" from an "authorized correspondent" during this Christmas season.

Modification of rules forbidding receipt of packages was announced yesterday in "The Atlantaian," published by prisoners. The package may contain one or more of the following items: Christmas candy (chocolate covered cherries or candies containing cordials not permitted), shelled nuts, one new book (standard fiction or vocational subject, magazines excluded), one greeting card and a calendar (free of advertising and not larger than 5 by 8 inches).

Beneath the announcement was a notice saying the prison commissary will have the following special items on sale: Pound cake (in 1-pound cuts), cashew nuts (shelled, in 7-ounce bags), pecans (in 7-ounce bags), peanuts (in 7-ounce bags), and Christmas cards. Prices of the first four items will be determined after purchases, said the announcement. The cards are five cents each, including postage.

STATE LIQUOR TAX NETS $1,477,455

Of March to November 30 Total, Excise Stamp Brings in $1,359,101.

Liquor taxes, which under Georgia's constitution must be spent for educational purposes, yielded $1,477,455.29 from late March to November 30 inclusive, the State Revenue Department reported yesterday.

The alcohol control act, which ended 22 years of prohibition in Georgia, began to bring in first revenue on March 31. The state derives its revenue from an excise tax of $1 a gallon on liquor and license fees required of wholesalers, retailers and distillers.

Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head said all collections had been sent to the treasury, that none of the money had been spent for administering the new law.

Of the total yield, the excise (stamp) tax brought $1,359,101.18; licenses on wholesalers and retailers, $94,517.99; distillers' permits, $9,815; taxes on impounded liquor, $13,916.05, and confiscated liquor and a seized car, $146.07.

COX URGES PARTY TO BREAK WITH CIO 'FOR GOOD OF U. S.'

'God Pity Democrats' If Lewis Controls 1940 Convention, Outspoken Georgia Solon Warns.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—If labor's Nonpartisan League assumes a controlling hand in the 1940 convention which nominates the next presidential candidate, as advocated by its chairman, John L. Lewis, "God pity the Democratic party," Representative Eugene E. Cox, of Georgia, declared here today as an echo to the recent Lewis demands.

Always an outspoken critic of the CIO as opposed to the American Federation of Labor, Cox has had more than one spat with the bushy-browed CIO leader, since the latter became a power in politics. Cox has never hesitated to declare his independence when Lewis sought to dictate to the powerful rules committee of the house, of which Cox is second ranking majority member. When that committee was being imported from all sides last session to look with favor upon wage-hour legislation and bow to the wishes of Lewis, it was Cox who all but ordered the CIO leader from the committee room.

"To Play Big Part."

Only last Saturday, Lewis told a press conference that his group confidently expected to take a big hand in the selection of both a President and a vice president in the Democratic national convention of 1940. To accomplish his purpose, he explained that he was prepared to go into town precincts to form nonpartisan league units. The league, of course, is the political arm of the Congress for Industrial Organization.

"Lewis and his CIO committee have been paid a thousand times over for the contribution they made to the Democratic party in 1936," the Georgian declared. "Now, the good of the party and the country demands that any tie-up that might exist, if there be such a tie-up with Democracy, be broken, and broken without delay."

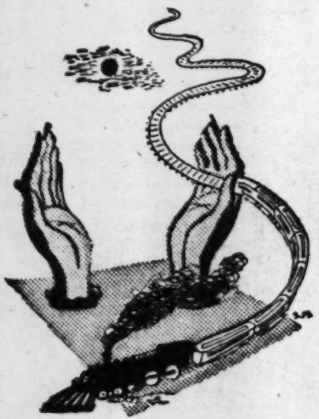

"I had as soon live in Russia as under this crowd of 'Reds,' because, after all, it would be the Soviets brought to America. If the occasion arises during the coming session of the 76th congress for the CIO to ask special treatment of the house rules committee, Cox, sitting at the right hand of the new chairman, Adolph J. Sabath, of Illinois, is expected to accord Mr. Lewis nothing but justice, with no special favors. He does not feel that the one hundred thousands or more dollars contribution made by the Lewis organization toward the re-election of President Roosevelt in 1936 should be used as a lever to obtain favors."

As second-ranking member of the committee, Cox, who has, on more than one occasion, voted contrary to the wishes of New Dealers, will be a power, along with other old dealers on the committee, both Democratic and Republican, in shaping any legislative program that may be laid before the lower chamber for final action.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Will Revive Ante-Bellum Custom on Christmas

By Sally Forth

ON CHRISTMAS MORNING at 10:30 o'clock an ante-bellum custom will be revived when Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn play Santa Claus to their faithful servants and their families.

The celebration, which is an annual event, will take place at "Glennridge," the handsome English manor estate of the senior Glenns, and will assemble 79 darkies, whose small homes are located on the Glenn estate, near Dunwoody. A mammoth Christmas tree, a twinkling with a myriad of lights, will sparkle in the paneled drawing room, and yule logs will crackle warmly on the hearth. Holly and evergreens culled from the wooded area surrounding the estate will beautify the interior of the home.

Led by their beloved master and mistress, the servants will repeat the Lord's prayer in unison, after which the unequalled melody of negro voices will be heard in spiritual song. In keeping with the beautiful solemnity of the scene will be the rich chords peeling from the pipe organ in the drawing room.

The morning's entertainment will be climaxed by the distribution of Christmas gifts piled high beneath the tree. The scrubbed ebony complexions of the pickaninies present will shine like their eyes when their names are read from package labels by Mr. or Mrs. Glenn.

At 2 o'clock "de white folks," comprising members of the Glenn family, will gather around the dining room table to be served an old-fashioned southern Christmas dinner by the valued domestics. The tasty contents of each dish, incidentally, will be products raised on the Glenn estate. Out-of-town relatives who will spend Christmas at the Glenn home will be Mrs. Louis Watson Toles, of Sarasota, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Francke, of Saginaw, Mich.

A MID all the joy and happiness of Christmas comes a note of regret with the news that Atlanta society will soon lose a trio of its most popular members—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Callaway and their lovely young daughter, Harriett. Shortly after the New Year, the Callaways will leave for LaGrange to make their home, after having resided here for a number of years, during which time they have become the center of a wide circle of admiring friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Callaway lived in LaGrange, the native hearth of the former, following their marriage, and Harriett was born there. Before coming to Atlanta eight years ago, they spent several years in New York. They have made no definite plans yet, but in all probability they will build an attrac-

Miss Shumaker Weds Mr. Garrett

MR. AND MRS. SIMS GARRETT JR.

Miss Constance Shumaker became the bride of Sims Garrett Jr., of Washington, D. C., at a brilliant ceremony solemnized at 8 o'clock last evening at Emory University chapel in the presence of an assemblage of prominent Atlantans and out-of-town guests. Dr. W. A. Smart performed the ceremony.

The altar was banked with palms and ferns, and beautified with floor baskets of Easter lilies placed at intervals among the greenery. Cathedral candelabra containing tall white tapers flanked the altar, and family pews were marked with clusters of Easter lilies.

Ushers were Clark Duncan and Matthew Williams, of Buena Vista; Robert Cochran, of Rupert, and Henry L. Bowden.

Miss Harriet Coley, of Daytona Beach, Fla., was the bride's maid of honor. She was gowned in dusty rose slipper satin, the laced bodice of which was fashioned like a basque. Adorning her hair were ostrich tips of a matching shade of rose, and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Bridesmaids were Misses Alyce and Helen Powell, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Joe Carter Burgin, of Cuthbert; and Miss Margaret Johnson. Misses Powell wore models of turquoise blue slipper satin, and Mrs. Burgin and Miss Johnson were attired in sapphire blue satin. Their gowns were fashioned like that worn by the maid of honor and they carried bouquets of yellow roses.

Bride's Dress.

The bride entered with her uncle, George Munn, by whom she was given in marriage. She was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, the Honorable Stephen Pace, of Americus. Her patrician beauty was enhanced by her wedding gown of white satin, which was fashioned along princess lines, and featured a built-in train. Tiny satin-covered buttons extended from the cowl neckline to the waist in the back, and trimmed the long, tight-fitting sleeves. Her exquisite veil of point d'esprit and rosepoint laces fell from a coronet of seed pearls and orange blossoms, and extended to the end of the train. She carried a bouquet of valley lilies and orchids tied with white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Smith Ross, mother of the bride, wore a model of pastel blue net, which featured a girle and bolero stitched in silver. Her flowers were gardenias.

Mrs. Sims Garrett Sr., of Charing, mother of the groom, wore black crepe embroidered in sequins. On her shoulder she wore a spray of gardenias.

After the ceremony the bride's mother entertained at an informal reception at her home on Cameron court. Guests were limited to members of the immediate families, wedding party and out-of-town guests.

The bride's table was centered with a tiered cake adorned with valley lilies, and flanked by silver candelabra holding white tapers. A color motif of white and green predominated in the decorations throughout the house.

Mr. Garrett and his bride left for a wedding trip, the destination of which was unrevealed. For traveling Mrs. Garrett wore a wine colored woolen suit trimmed with a mink fur collar and pockets. Her hat was of wine velvet and she wore other accessories of this shade.

After January 1, Mr. and Mrs. Garrett will reside at 2869 Twenty-eighth street, in Washington, D. C., where they will be popular additions to the national capital's young married set.

Out-of-Town Guests.

Prominent out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Connolly, of Cuthbert; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Carter Burgin, of Cuthbert; Congressman Emmett Owen, of Griffin; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Blacklock, of Griffin; Mr. and Mrs. Sims Garrett Sr., of Charing, Ga.; Congressman Robert Ramspeck and Mrs. Ramspeck, of Washington, D. C., and Decatur; Congressman Stephen Pace and Mrs. Pace and their son and daughter, Martha and Stephen Pace, of Americus; Miss Celia Lucas, of Macon; Frank Chappell, of Americus; E. C. Stephens, of Buena Vista; Thomas Callaway, of Covington; James Powell, of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. James Lowe and Miss Martha Lowe and Warren Williams, of Americus; Misses Queenie Baker and Lois Gholson, of Elberton; Charles Clements, of Buena Vista; Miss Harriet Coley, of Daytona Beach, Fla.; Misses Alyce Powell and Helen Powell, of Washington, D. Burks Jr., of Birmingham, Ala., whose marriage will be an event of social importance taking place this evening at 6 o'clock at the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church.

The affair followed the wedding rehearsal and assembled the members of the Echols-Burks wedding party and the guests from a distance who have arrived for the wedding.

The home was decorated for the occasion with quantities of Christmas greens and the beautifully appointed buffet table reflected the Yuletide motif of crimson and green. The hostess was assisted in entertaining her guests by her parents, Colonel and Mrs. W. P. Stokely. Miss Stokely will serve as maid of honor for Miss Echols this evening.

Miss Jones and Mr. Scott Marry At the Cathedral of St. Philip

Miss Margaret Jones, daughter of Mrs. Lillian Taylor Ridley and the late Dr. Edward Groves Jones, became the bride of James Goodwin Scott, of Washington, D. C., formerly of Birmingham, Ala., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Scott, of Birmingham, yesterday afternoon at the Cathedral of St. Philip.

Dean Raimundo de Ovies performed the ceremony at 5 o'clock in the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends of the young couple and a number of out-of-town guests. Prior to and during the ceremony an appropriate musical program was presented by Thomas Brumby, organist.

The interior of the church was adorned with quantities of rich greenery amid which were groupings of floor baskets filled with lilies and other white flowers. The altar vases were filled with Easter lilies and cathedral candelabra held white burning tapers.

Ushers were Howard Fisch, Carol Mastin, Bryan A. Chauncey and King Sparks, of Birmingham, Ala.; T. Brooks Pearson and Charles E. Waits.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Howard Fisch and Miss Lillian Taylor Jones, of West Salem, Miss. The bride, and her bridesmaid, Mrs. Charles Boynton Cole was matron of honor. The bride's attendants were gowned in becoming models of rose coral taffeta fashioned along princess lines and featuring short puff sleeves and sweetheart necklines. They wore doll hats of ostrich feathers and velvet, completed by finger-tip veils and carried shower bouquets of talisman roses and yellow snapdragons.

Entering with her brother, Dr. Edward Groves Jones, the bride was met at the altar by the groom and his father, Frank N. Scott, of Birmingham, who was the best man. Her stately brunet beauty was emphasized by her exquisite wedding gown of bridal satin made along becoming princess lines with long, graceful skirt which widened to form a train.

Her tulle veil fell from a Juliet cap trimmed with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and valley lilies.

Mrs. Lillian Taylor Ridley, mother of the bride, was gowned in black velvet worn with a hat to match, and her flowers were gardenias. Mrs. Frank N. Scott, of Birmingham, the groom's mother, wore a black velvet dress with hat to match, and her flowers were gardenias.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fisch entertained at a reception at their home on Arden road for the bridal couple.

In the dining room, the table was covered with a white satin cloth and was centered with a wedding cake placed on a mound of varicolored flowers. At either end of the table were crystal candelabra holding burning tapers. Throughout the dining room and in the other rooms a color motif of green and white was carried out in the decorations.

The bride left for their wedding trip and upon their return they will reside in Washington, D. C. The bride traveled in a model of beige wool trimmed with brown lapin. Her accessories were brown and her flowers were gardenias.

When You Are Too Tired to Hold Yourself Erect—Rest!

Don't Slump When Tired; That Increases Fatigue

By Ida Jean Kain.

Slumped posture often begins in fatigue and grows worse through habit. Rounding the shoulders and letting the small of the back cave in and the tummy stick out is the characteristic stance of the person who is so tired she could drop, and particularly of the thin girl whose vitality is low and who is easily fatigued.

While we do not generally think of good posture as being dependent upon adequate rest, there is no question but that it is dependent. Study your own posture—and figure—in a full-length mirror sometimes when you have been going too hard and have failed to relax as you should. If you force yourself to keep going after you are tired, the slumping is apt to become more pronounced, and slumping itself contributes to your fatigue.

Even though I am a stickler for exercise, rest comes first when you are too tired to hold yourself erect. In the case of the thin girl, a general building program is needed with proper nourishment through a weight-gaining diet, increased sleeping hours, complete relaxation, and then a general exercise program worked in along with the other measures. In this case, posture cannot be treated as an isolated condition for it really reflects the general state of health.

With some of you, however, slumping may be a habit you have fallen into when you were tired rather than an indication of lowered vitality. When you are tired it seems easier to slump, and gradually the wrong muscles are strengthened so that even when you are rested you feel more comfortable slumping. Actually, it takes more energy to sit, stand or walk with your body out of alignment than with the muscles coordinating properly and weight in perfect balance, but you must exercise to strengthen the right muscles before this seems easy to you.

Faulty posture is an individual problem but it is always a good plan to begin with the middle of the figure and strengthen the muscles of the abdomen and lower back—the ones directly responsible for a protruding tummy and swayback. One of the best exercises for this is one of the simplest, but you need a full-length mirror for it.

Stand sideways before the mirror, feet perfectly straight and parallel, and knees straight. The feet should also be about four inches apart. Begin by pushing the buttocks out and up with the muscles all loose, until you look as if you were wearing a bustle.

For Large Women

By Barbara Bell

It's the bodice detailing that makes this dress not only distinctly new, but distinctly becoming to large figures. Fullness at each side of the plain front panel assures excellent fit over the bust, and makes the lifted waistline and the hips look slimmer. Large women always find a V-neckline in this type very becoming, and in this design the slenderizing effect is enhanced by the low-placed two-button closing at one side. The short sleeves are made with a box pleat.

This is the good-looking type of house dress that you can wear all day long, from the moment you get up in the morning until you dress for dinner. In fact, you'll like it so well in percale, linen or gingham that you'll be repeating it in flat crepe or thin wool, without the pockets, for shopping.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1660-B is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 36-inch material; 3 yards of broad.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Do not send stamps.

Send 15 cents for the Barbara Bell Winter Fashion Pattern Book. Make yourself attractive, practical and becoming clothes, selecting designs from the Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns.

Pull up with the thigh muscles in front until they are tight. Then slowly begin to draw the buttocks in and under, closing the hips in as though it were a vise. As the thighs are rolled in and under, the tummy is pushed into place and appears flat. Gradually relax, rest for a moment and start over. It is very important that the knees be held straight, the thighs taut and the feet exactly parallel during the exercise.

One posture difficulty seems to bring on another and you may also need special exercises for a round upper back or stooped shoulders, but you can do a great deal by always trying to hold the body as tall as possible, without strain. In the effort to stand tall the head is erect, the chest up, the abdominal muscles up and hips under. With the right muscles strong, you hold this position naturally and easily.

Wasting Money, Saving Junk, Her Mania

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I am afflicted with a mother who has a mania for buying, collecting and saving everything but money. She spends every cent she can lay her hands on and it never occurs to her to put aside anything for the rainy day. Cheap jewelry is her main weakness and her collecting is fairly bulging with junk. Open one of them and anything and everything falls out on the floor. She will not destroy or discard anything from empty bottles and boxes to old clothes and frayed lamp shades. Because our house is small I have formed the habit of discarding what isn't used. Cloth scraps go to an old lady who makes her living piecing quilts; magazines to the hospital; garments to the charities; yet I suggest that mother send off some of her surplus stuff she looks crestfallen as though I were depriving her of something dear to her. Spending money and saving junk are her chief delights. Please give me some good advice on how to be more tolerant of her while she is in my home, taking it for granted and will move out soon; but for that I'd lose my mind.

P. I.

Answer: Friend, I think you are doing a swell job without advice from the outside. The mere fact that you haven't made a big bonfire and burned your mother's rubbish while she was on shopping expedition indicates that everything is under control. Considering the fact that you are inconvenienced and annoyed at housing a junk heap in your small quarters and that you are worried about the future in which she will be your charge, I'd say you have shown fine toleration with her.

Presumably, you have realized the truth of the adage that the old dog can't be taught new tricks. A grandmother who has a passion for spending money foolishly, buying gewgaws and cheap jewelry, cramming bureau drawers with worthless trinkets will not become thrifty in her old age. But you can continue to grin and bear since it won't be long until the moving van backs up to your door and carts off the cluttering bureau drawers along with the empty bottles and boxes—say nothing of the passenger.

Since the world began there have been parents who regarded their children as paid-up insurance against want in old age, parents who spent every cent they got for their children's education, but in these hard days when the new generation sees no disgrace in consigning the old folk to institutions to spend their twilight years, parents are taking a big chance with Fate when they fail to build a bank account.

More Perfumes and Toiletries Suggested as Last-Minute Gifts

By Lillian Mae.

There's a gay gift box, which I believe is new this season, holding an unusual combination at a modest price. With all its feminine appeal, it may be purchased for slightly less than $3.

In the very ornamental box there is a lovely round box of dusting powder, carrying a handsome velvet puff. Also in this package you'll find six little sachet bags of compressed lavender blossoms—the same fragrance as the dusting powder. The little bags are very practical for the linen closet, or the lingerie drawer, while pinned to the dress hanger, they impart a delightful fragrance for months.

The woman who appreciates fragrant toiletries will be delighted with this set—for she knows, of course, that lavender is refreshing and individual, as a personal perfume.

Calculated to make bath-time a grand beauty ritual is a set consisting of a crystal candlestick, a pair of sparkling out-of-doors type of eau de toilette, a round box of delightful matching body sachet with a huge pink swans-down puff, and a simply gilded cake of gardenia-scented soap which develops clouds of creamy perfumed lather to penetrate the pores and leave the skin delightfully smooth and supple. The body sachet veils with a chiffon-like protective film, preventing chapping, flaking and chafing of the skin. And that "best girl" will adore an after-bath rub-down with the eau de toilette, to revive her spirits. The diaphanous self, will dress up her dressing table!

Another idea—if you are still in a dilemma over what to give her—is one of the new completely streamlined and modern manicure sets built to look like fine handbags or luxurious jewel cases, in leather, calfskin, pin seal, brown ostrich, or washable and color-fast fabricoid.

The interiors are lined with silk or satin. Bottles and jars stay snugly in place, held by spring-like clips. The kits vary in price according to their contents, which range from a set containing nail enamel, oily remover, triple steel file, emery boards and orange stick, to the luxury-size having four shades of enamel, oily remover, cuticle lotion, nail cream, nippers, scissors, professional file, pusher, orange stick and emery boards.

These sets are the answer to any man's problem, whether SHE is a very young miss or his grandmother.

Better phone me now, while there's still time to chase out and get that extra present or two you've been putting off buying. I'll tell you the names of these items and where they may be purchased. Write me if you do not live in Atlanta, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Pep Up Your Party With Games

Peals of laughter as poor Sue struggles to keep her Size 3 feet in Size 12 slippers! Just one of the hilarious moments when you have a Floppy Slipper Relay Race at your party.

Line up your crowd in two teams, giving each a pair of the biggest, floppiest slippers you can find. At a signal one player from each team puts on the slippers, races madly across the room and back, then hands his "gun-boats" to next player.

What if slippers fly off? The player must hold everything and put them on again. Reward the winning team with gum noisemakers or colorful balloons.

Another side-splitting stunt is Paul Revere's Ride. You choose one player to be Paul. Then you put around the floor such articles as milk bottles and potted plants. Tell "Paul" this is the enemy's territory he must ride through, then blindfold and turn him loose.

How carefully Paul steps around—and how your crowd laughs at his useless antics—for of course you remove all the obstacles after you blindfold him.

Here's a clever way to match partners for a dance or to get the crowd mixing. Write names of popular tunes on slips, as Alexander's Ragtime Band, St. Louis Blues. Make two slips for each tune.

Put half of each pair in box for girls to draw from, other half in box for men. Each goes around humming the tune on his slip, seeking the one humming the same tune. And what a grand and crazy buzzing there is!

Fun every minute when you have our 40-page booklet, "Games for Good Parties." Contains dozens of clever stunts, fortune games, magic tricks, word games, and many more to make your parties a success.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, GAMES FOR GOOD PARTIES, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Pets in Cross Stitch

They're such charming little kittens that you'll want to embroider them on a variety of linens—a tea cloth perhaps or a scarf or pair of towels. They're in cross stitch, with the baskets and posies in other easy stitches—so easy to do that your needle fairly flies. Use two shades of a color for the kittens. Here's dandy work for leisure moments!

A Happy Xmas On a Slim Budget

By Elizabeth McRae Boykin.

The Martins up the street have a houseful of children and a slim budget. But they have a big yard and enough Christmas spirit for the whole block. They make many of their own Christmas decorations and improvise gifts for each other and always manage to get together a gay basket of gifts and goodies for a poor family.

And they don't forget the birds. On their gate post you'll find a sheaf of wheat on Christmas morning. And their snow men usually hold trays of grain and suet for the birds, too.

Inside the house, the whole place is trimmed to a fare-you-well. "Not always artistic," smiled Mother Martin, "but the children adore it and it keeps them entertained during those restless pre-Christmas days."

Serpentine necklaces, homemade wreaths and bells, everything you could think of draped over the doors. And such fantastic Christmas scenes as they make in the windows with colored paper cut out and pasted on glass!

Encourage Them
"Oh, well, soon enough they won't want to entertain themselves at home," Father Martin said indulgently. "So I say we'd better encourage them to make this the center of interest as long as we can."

But the biggest thrill of all is the tree and the Christmas room. That's the basement play room which is shut off for the week before the great day and there Father and Mother bustle around in mystery. For the tree is kept as a surprise for the last minute.

Each year the game room is transformed into Christmas in some foreign land... most interestingly achieved with crepe paper and ingenuity, but always interesting and lighted to give it glamor. The children dress up in costumes of the foreign land selected, and for their Christmas party little guests are invited to dress that way too. The Christmas customs of each land are followed and Father Martin reads stories of the children of that country. This year it's Czechoslovakia because the children have been hearing so much about that country in the news lately. One year it was Russia, another Spain. And so on.

Is it any wonder that the Martins' house is the neighborhood club for all the children in that end of town? And that the Martins aren't worried about keeping their children at home?

An Enlargement Of the Heart Is Gradual

By Dr. William Brady.

When valvular leakage develops as a result of endocarditis complicating some such illness as quinsy, scarlet fever, acute infection arthritis (perhaps without being recognized as endocarditis at the time of the illness or indisposition, since it frequently produces no symptoms, pointing to the heart), the natural course of the valvular disease is a gradual enlargement of the heart. The heart enlarges, becomes more powerful, because it has to pump more blood at each beat, in order to compensate for the backflow of some of the blood through the damaged valve. When the heart is thus enlarged or hypertrophied and its capacity to maintain efficient circulation is increased, physicians refer to the state as "compensation" or "good compensation." Such a heart pumps an adequate supply of oxygen to the cells, tissues and organs to enable them to carry on their functions normally, so long as the individual's ways of living and his activities remain within his limitations or do not make greater demands than his margin of reserve power can meet. So it seems that enlargement of the heart is rather a blessing.

Young men who have had some years of athletic training commonly develop more or less enlargement or hypertrophy of the heart. It is a necessary part of such training for contests of endurance, such as football, boxing, wrestling, distance running, distance swimming. While they continue their athletic careers the enlarged heart gives no trouble, but if they abruptly give up athletic activities and indulge in a prolonged loaf or enter some sedentary occupation, they are likely to suffer from palpitation or consciousness of the action of the heart and other symptoms which need not be presented here. It is better to keep up a fair degree of physical exercise in one form or another, to break training gradually, not suddenly. The cardiac hypertrophy or enlargement was developed gradually; let it be removed in the same way.

It is because strenuous athletic training necessarily produces enlargement of the heart that physicians who have studied the problems and have had experience advise against such precocious affections as football in high school. Training for football, if properly carried on under the supervision of a physician, is not injurious to men of university age. It is a dangerous thing for boys in their teens. At that period of life a boy's heart is taxed to supply the oxygen his rapidly growing and developing cells, tissues and organs require. To permit him to do his rah-rah imitation of the university football player is criminal negligence on the part of parents—ignorance is no excuse—and its damaging effects are likely to handicap the boy through life. Physical training and athletic activities for high school boys, of course, but for the future welfare of the boy, don't be silly about it.

Boxing (short rounds), sprinting, swimming, baseball, tennis, jumping and the like are suitable athletic contests for growing boys. Medical Charity.
Do you believe one gets as good treatment and care by going to hospital to have a tumor removed as one would get in a private hospital? (A. B. B.)

Answer: So far as the medical or surgical services are concerned, it doesn't matter whether you are a charity patient, pay your board and room alone or pay the entire cost including the doctor's or surgeon's fee. You get the same treatment, of course. As for the style of accommodations, and such fancy trimmings as special nurse, etc., that is a matter of your personal taste or desire.

Bad to Overtake Your Partner's King

While it is usually considered bad defensive practice to overtake partner's winning high cards, there are circumstances when such a play is entirely justifiable. When a ruff is desired in some other suit.

Monroe Doctrine Must Be Upheld

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON—Miss Manners sang beautifully yesterday afternoon at the concert and the Washington Symphony Orchestra is always a joy to me. I left rather early because I had a young man staying in the house, and felt that he might find it a rather gloomy place if no one was home for tea. I find it particularly pleasant to light the open fire in my sitting room in the late afternoon, and have the tea table put in there and, in the coziness of my own living room, forget for a time what a big house we are living in.

I read the first installment of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's story last night. Her style is easy and flowing, and I am sure as the story goes on, it will prove of great interest, for she has lived through one of the most interesting periods in history, with one of the greatest figures playing in the drama. Many dramatic events must have occurred which no one but Mrs. Wilson could adequately describe.

Today is a glorious day. We held a press conference this morning, and this afternoon I fly to New York for a purely frivolous evening. I am going first to the theater with my brother and some friends, and later to the hotel where Miss Chaney and her dancing partner are opening for an engagement.

The WPA writers' project has just sent me two new publications, one the story of Cincinnati, Ohio, over a period of 150 years, and the other, the New York Almanac for this year, which is most entertaining.

Two headlines in a morning paper arrested my attention. One was the statement by Mr. Alfred Landon that the Monroe Doctrine would be upheld, regardless of what political party came into power in the United States. It seems to me a very wise thing to have that clearly stated at the present time. We rather enjoy our political differences in this country, and we fight out our campaigns with vigor and some bitterness at times, but there are certain fundamental things on which, as a people, we are agreed. One of them, I think, is that we feel our own safety can only be secure if the nations of South and Central America remain free.

Any domination from outside, whether achieved through colonization or through economic control, would not only endanger their freedom, but our own safety. Therefore, the Monroe Doctrine is not a party issue.

The other heading is over a dispatch from Paris, written by a man who has just completed a tour of Germany. He seems to be impressed by the tragedy which has met him in so many places, and he states what many of us have thought was probable, that there are people in Germany who are suffering today because of the cruelties which are being perpetrated there, even though they, themselves, are not the victims.

Promoters Anxious for Bout Between Errol Flynn, Vallee

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—Clark Gable's property in the San Fernando Valley was purchased in Carole Lombard's name to avoid legal complications in his forthcoming divorce from Mrs. Rhea Gable. The town is full of promoters trying to arrange a bout between one-punch Errol Flynn and one-push Rudy Vallee. By the way, out of 30 guests who were to dine with Mrs. Jock Whitney on Christmas Eve, only Mrs. Whitney, Bruce Cabot, Bud Ernst and Mr. Flynn sat down to dinner, for the main dish was raw beefsteak.

There was nothing amicable about the settled contracts of Joan Blondell and Dick Powell with Warner Brothers—to hear Joan and Dick tell it. Spencer Tracy is the worst businessman in Hollywood. He bought the horse Westbound from Toni Landi (Elissa's brother), who stipulated that he must receive half of the animal's race winnings (if any) at Santa Anita. After which the horse will be returned to him. I am still trying to figure out where and when Spencer comes in.

Gary Cooper rushed back from Europe because Sam Goldwyn told him his next picture, "The Last Frontier," was ready. But Sam forgot to tell Gary that Leading Lady Andrea Leeds was still limping with a broken ankle and definitely unready. To hold Gary in Hollywood, Sam had to lend him to Paramount. He makes "Beau Geste" for Paramount, playing the part that made Ronald Colman famous. Shirley Ross may not know it yet, but she will get a mink coat for Christmas from Husband Ken Dolan. Freddie Bartholomew is most indignant because his studio has hired an English tutor to repolish his English accent. "I haven't changed my voice at all," Freddie told me in accents that ranged from a deep bass to a squeaky treble.

Note from a publicity department. "Warner Baxter is knocked cold by a terrific blow to the jaw delivered by Loretta Young—'Wife, Husband and Friend.' Amazing how strong these fragile film ladies become in front of the cameras! An inquisitive reporter asked Franchot Tone whether he would be seeing Joan Crawford when she follows to New York. 'Of course,' he replied. 'I'll see any attractive woman.' Vivien Leigh, the beautiful English lass who appeared with Robert Taylor in 'Yank at Oxford,' is in town and says she is looking forward to seeing that handsome heart-breaker. 'But haven't you heard of Barbara Stanwyck?' she was asked. 'Yes,' replied Vivien, 'but I'm still looking forward to meeting Mr. Taylor.' When Miss Leigh was asked what else she was doing in Hollywood, she said, 'The usual thing—taking tests for 'Gone With the Wind.'"

Marlene Dietrich is hoping that by the time her cold is cured at Palm Springs, someone in Hollywood will make her a picture offer she can accept. Before she left town, Marlene dined with Marmaduke Matheson, who will shortly produce "Golden Boy"—but there is only one good feminine part in that, and it is practically decided that Jean Arthur his small hearts before South has had an opportunity to gain the lead and draw East's trumps.

TOO AMBITIOUS.
Among the most glaring weaknesses of inexperienced bridge players is the tendency to be too ambitious in raising partner's defensive suit overalls.

Primarily suit overalls are made for defensive purposes. If partner raises or takes out, it is on his own responsibility. Pre-emptive overalls are usually made on long, weak suits, with little or no outside strength. 'Til tomorrow.

Henry Grady IV Gives Stag Dinner Celebrating His Eighth Birthday

Henry Grady IV entertained at a stag dinner last evening at his home on Wesley road in celebration of his eighth birthday, the occasion assembling eight of his young friends.

The interior of the home was made gay with Christmas decorations of holly and mistletoe. The table at which the guests were seated for dinner was centered with a gay red celophane Christmas tree arising from a mirror which was encircled with holly. The tree was strung with small cookies, sticks of candy, silver bugles, and other glittering silver and crystal ornaments. At either end of the table was a miniature red automobile in which was seated a jovial Santa Claus figure. Dancing in a circle around Santa and his car were small gum-drops, which were made by the young Grady, his mother, Mrs. Henry Grady Jr., and his sister, The place cards bore Christmas holly wreaths and were inscribed by the host with the nicknames of his guests, most of whom are called by the names of the Seven Dwarfs. The places were also marked with attractive favors which included poppers, noisemakers, Christmas cards, chocolate cigars and cigarettes which were a birthday gift from Mrs. John McDonald, were served to the guests after dinner.

Following dinner, a novel cobweb game was played, with each guest following a string until he found the end and was rewarded with a prize. The host also entertained his guests with his collection of aeroplanes and his electric train.

Covers were placed for Ralph Paris Jr., Charles King, John Dickinson, John Ferguson, John Otley Jr., I. M. Sheffield, III, by the young Grady, his mother, Mrs. Henry Grady Jr., and his sister, The place cards bore Christmas

Miss Lambdin, Mr. Waddle Feted At Buffet Supper After Rehearsal

Climaxing the series of interesting prenuptial parties given in compliment to Miss Clara Lambdin and John Sidney Waddle of New Orleans, whose marriage will be an event of social importance taking place at St. Philip's Cathedral at noon today, was the buffet supper at which Colonel and Mrs. Gerald P. O'Keefe and their daughter, Miss Betty Yopp, entertained last evening. The party was held in the apartment of the hosts at the Biltmore hotel, following the wedding rehearsal, and assembled the members of the wedding party, the relatives of the bride and groom, and the out-of-town guests who have arrived to attend the wedding. Miss Yopp will act as maid of honor and only attendant for her cousin, Miss Lambdin.

The apartment was attractively decorated for the occasion in the bridal motif of white and green. White roses, white gladioli and baby's breath were arranged in silver bowls and baskets on the tables and consoles, and the only illumination was furnished by tall white tapers burning in silver holders.

The lovely young guest chose for the party a gown of shimmering pink satin, trimmed at the waistline with bands of dull blue grosgrain ribbon. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of valley lilies.

Among the visitors present who will attend the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Noel Park and Dr. and Mrs. Jack Parker, of Greenville, S. C.; Mrs. Ben H. Harris and Miss Eva Betz, of Columbus; Mrs. Ben S. Giles, of New Orleans; Mrs. A. Pierce Hammond, of Barnesville; Albert Hardy Jr., of Gainesville; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Anderson, of Augusta; and Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Black, of Montezuma.

Miss Hoyt, Fiance Honored at Dinner

Miss Julia Hoyt and her fiance, Frank Holt III, were honored last evening at a dinner party at which Mr. and Mrs. Fred Patterson were hosts at a downtown hotel.

The table was centered with an artistic arrangement of calla lilies and snapdragons, and sprinkled with artificial snow to introduce the Christmas motif.

Present were 12 close friends of the honor guests.

Miss Peggy Dutton entertained at luncheon yesterday at her Seventeenth street home in honor of Miss Hoyt. Her guests were seated for luncheon at a table beautifully appointed in the Christmas motif of silver and white. Gracing the center of the table was a miniature silver Christmas tree, strung with glittering silver and crystal ornaments. The place cards also bore the silver and white motif.

Throughout the lower floor of the home, the mantels were banked in silvered foliage and pine cones, and cedar wreaths hung with silver bells adorned the windows. Shower gifts for the bride-elect carried out the red and white color scheme selected for her kitchen.

Miss Dutton was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. W. C. Dutton; the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Fred A. Hoyt; Mrs. Frank Holt and Mrs. Paul P. Reese.
